What Will Stalin Offer?
Shall We Become Perennials?
Much Abused Big Business.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT HOOVER calls 60 leading citizens, representing business, industry, finance, to help Walter S. Gifford meet the unemployment problem. Such a problem calls for much ability and intelligence. We have that, but "what is everybody's business is nobody's business."

Dividing responsibility among 61 is not a method that usually achieves results.

ACROSS THE OCEAN, Stalin—at his name we are supposed to shiver with virtuous horror—will soon offer a suggestion to improve world conditions, saying, according to International News, "This is no time for petty envy or stupid rivalry. The present crisis affects the proletariat (workers) of all nations. The Soviets will co-operate with capitalistic countries in every honest effort to maintain peace and insure economic welfare."

It will be interesting to see what Stalin has to suggest. In this country we haven't any definite suggestion except feeble charity, which amounts to nothing, and a firm determination to avoid the dole.

THIS IS IMPORTANT to old ladies and gentlemen that would like to stay on earth longer than nature usually allows.

Cornell University has changed an annual plant, one that dies, and must be planted every year, into a lasting perennial, by treatment with X-rays. Man is a mixture between an annual and a perennial biped, lasts but a few winters, and then must go.

FROM HIS HEAD to his feet, microscopic enemies, including millions of intestinal bacteria, attack man from birth. Science might find a way to attack them, and postpone the inevitable death. Sometimes it is necessary, as Lingi Cornaro said of himself, "to live to be 90 in order to know that the world is beautiful." On the average it takes us 70 years to learn that life is interesting, and nearly all of us are taken from life just when it begins to be worth while.

AT THE INSTITUTE of Politics, in Williams Institute, our "big business" is cruelly criticized by learned gentlemen.

The various "high-brows" agree that "big business" lacks humanity, is too much interested in dividends and millions, not enough interested in human beings.

YOU FEEL ABOUT "big business" in these depression days as the stranger at the funeral felt about the corpse.

When there was no response to the request, "Will some friend of the deceased say a few words?" the stranger rose and said "I have never heard of this corpse in my life, but I'm a friend of any man who has as few friends as he has here."

YOU CAN SAY for big business, that at least it provides everything necessary for happiness, if the mass of human beings would take some responsibility for what is done in the country, use their brains and their votes.

Big business has 25,000,000 automobiles running in America, millions of bathtubs, and has raised wages from below $1 a day, as in the time of Washington, to above $5 a day in 1929.

OUR FRIENDS in Russia, criticizing "United States capital," get from our "big business" their only hope of making their "five-year plan" succeed.

They get from America machines, engineers and credit to buy now, to buy more.

"Big business" is simply superior intelligence, selfish, but no more selfish than the man, in the story, that owned two pigs.

Ask him to give you one of the pigs, and you'll get an answer as cold as you get from General Electric, A. T. & T., Standard Oil of Indiana, or any big railroad. Big business, and little business, big men and little men, are alike.

WITH ALL HIS TROUBLES, Uncle Sam's credit is still good. Acting-Secretary of the Treasury Ballantine asked for only $60,000,000, was offered $224,974,000, and borrowed what he wanted for less than half of 1 per cent a year. That must impress foreign nations, mainly offering 8 per cent and more.

NEW YORK SUPPLIES the usual news item. "Behind the soiled brick walls of a dilapidated loft building, only six blocks from prohibition headquarters," a $1,000,000 liquor plant is discovered, with 16,000 gallons of alcohol, enough to supply at least 2,301,000 high-powered drinks." This little tribute to the prohibition law was turning out 15,000 gallons of alcohol every two days. With tens of thousands of secret stills in the United States, what is the total production of bootleg alcohol?

CAPT. HAWKS, champion American flier, continues his career. His latest record is a flight from New York to Fort Worth, Tex., in 7 hours 57 minutes. He says there was a good deal of snow, 14,000 feet up. On the way back, Hawks expects to break nine or 10 inter-city records.

THOMAS B. CAMPBELL, Montana wheat farmer, who showed Russia how to plant 30,000,000 acres, says the President should allow the unemployed to join the Army and Navy, for six months or a year, to supply them with food and lodging.

Supplying a man with uniform and other equipment and pay for six months would be more than the cost of his living at home, worse than the "dole."

THE NAVY FINDS one good feature in the unemployment situation. Within the last year, there were only 45 desertions, compared with more than 1,000 in 1927.

LINDYS AGAIN DOWNED BY FOG

Colonel and Wife Descend On Water Once More After Half of 400-Mile Flight

NEMURO, Japan, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Fog downed Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh again today soon after they had resumed their much interrupted flight toward Nemuro on their way to Tokio.

Leaving Muroton Bay, Shimushiru Island, at 2:10 p. m. (1:10 a. m. Pittsburgh time) after having been held to that vicinity since early Wednesday by thick weather and motor trouble, the couple expected to reach Nemuro, a distance of about 400 miles, without a stop.

DESCEND ON BAY

Tricky weather decreed otherwise. Messages to the Communications Department disclosed that they had encountered a dense fog bank and were advised to descend on the bay at Shana, Iturup Island, about half-way between Muroton Bay and Nemuro. A later message announced their landing at Shana at 4:58 p. m. Tokio time (3:58 a. m. Pittsburgh time).

It was the third time they had been forced to descend in attempting to fly 897 miles over the foggy Kurile Island route from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, to Nemuro—a stretch which they had expected to cover in a single hop on their vacation flight to the Orient.

LINDY FIXES ENGINE

The flight was resumed after Col. Lindbergh had spent several hours working on the plane. He arose early after he and Mrs. Lindbergh had spent the night in the hut of a fox farm tender at Muroton Bay. For hours he stood in a small boat beside the plane and tinkered with the engine.

The Lindbergh plane had been towed to Muroton Bay from Ketoi Island, 15 miles away, by a Japanese government ship after the couple had spent two nights and a day on the surface because of fog and engine trouble.

AKRON, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation workmen were rushing finishing touches on the interior of the giant Navy Zeppelin Akron, tentatively scheduled to take to the air Wednesday afternoon in its maiden voyage of three hours duration and 50 miles distance.

The Zeppelin is scheduled to be complete down to the smallest details when it is twice walked part way out of its dock Monday afternoon in a dress rehearsal by the ground crew of 250 men, who will handle the launching and landing in connection with the initial flight a few days later.

Gems in River

MRS. HUGH DILLMAN

DODGE JEWELS IN RIVER

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—The Chicago Tribune said today that a string of jewels had been dropped by accident in the Chicago River near the Michigan Avenue Bridge, by Mrs. Hugh Dillman, widow of Horace Dodge, founder of the automobile company bearing his name.

A diver has been busy for two days making soundings at the bridge.

Epidemics to Follow Greatest Modern Calamity

HANKOW, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Death, destruction and desolation rode the crest of flood waters down the Yangtse River today, causing probably the greatest calamity of modern times.

Unknown thousands had drowned, destitute scores died daily of typhoid and dysentery while medical authorities warned that with the receding of water, probably several weeks hence, more serious epidemics will rage.

30,000,000 HOMELESS

Upwards of 30,000,000 persons were said to have been made homeless by the unprecedented surge of waters in the valley. In the Wuhan cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, 400,000 refugees were counted.

Hankow presented a picture of destitution. Touring the native section of this city in a boat, an Associated Press correspondent saw thousands of one-story buildings submerged in water that covers the district from 10 to 15 feet deep. Larger edifices, including part of the plant of the Standard Oil Company of New York, tumbled each hour as waters undermined foundations.

FIGHT SUPERSTITIONS

Military authorities, attempting to bring relief to refugees, fought not only the destruction of flood waters, but superstitions, which hold thousands of natives in its grip.

Over Hankow many thousands of refugees sat on rooftops, a shred of cloth hung overhead, scant protection against the boiling rays of the sun with temperatures approaching 100 degrees fahrenheit daily.

DOWNTOWN OIL OFFICE ROBBED

The safe in the office of the Atlantic Refining Company, Bigelow boulevard and Chatham street, was robbed of $120 as two attendants, unaware, waited on customers, and a Homewood chain store manager was held up and robbed of $56 this morning.

John J. Power and Donald Malcolm were on duty at the refining company's gasoline station when the safe robbery is thought to have taken place about 7:15 a. m. Paul Loft, manager, discovered the robbery after noticing coins on the floor of the office.

J. H. Brennan, of 7107 Kedron street, manager of a chain store at 1407 North Lang avenue, reported that he was held up and compelled to lie face downward on the floor by a well-dressed man who asked for a package of chewing gum.

The robber conversed with an accomplice, Brennan said, as he held a revolver at Brennan's head. The holdup man grabbed a bag containing $50 that had been placed behind merchandise, took $4 from the cash register and Brennan's pocketbook containing $2 and his driver's license.

Court Order Reopens Fallston Hill Road

Barricades erected on Fallston Hill, route 51, by Fallston Borough officials, because of alleged dangerous conditions, were ordered removed today by Judge W. A. McConnell, of Beaver County, in a temporary injunction granted at the request of counsel for the State Highway Department.

Borough officials were also restrained from preventing the removal of the barricades. The barriers will probably be removed this afternoon. The barricades were erected August 6.

Beaverbrook Calls on U. S. To Lead World Recovery

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—A challenge to America to lead the world out of the slough of economic depression was sounded today by Lord Beaverbrook, London newspaper publisher.

The short, gray-haired power in British politics and industry, who started life with nothing and temporarily retired at the age of 28 with a fortune of $7,000,000, was aglow with optimism, however, as he stepped from the liner that brought him from Halifax.

He said he was certain the world would soon experience a great swing of the pendulum, which would bring back widespread prosperity. How soon, he intimated, would depend upon America.

Referring to the League of Nations as "that branch of the French foreign office," he said:

"Nothing too strong could be said about the League. It is worse than worthless, and I admire America for staying out of it."

As to Russia he said:

"I have been to Russia and studied her. She will be the next country to fail. Anyone is a fool to lend her money to postpone that inevitable climax."

M'DONALD'S LEADERSHIP TOTTERS

King George Ends Vacation, Returning to London as MacDonald Faces Crisis

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—In the midst of the most serious crisis the Labor government has encountered during its two years in office, King George will break his vacation at Balmoral Castle, Scotland, and return to London tonight by special train, it was learned by International News Service this afternoon.

The King's sudden return strengthened reports that the Labor government's resignation was imminent.

British tradition demands that ministerial resignations be tendered direct to the King.

British newspapers considered this a more likely reason for the King's return than the fact that his third son, the Duke of Gloucester, underwent an operation for appendicitis this morning. The duke was reported progressing favorably, and it was not believed his illness had prompted the King's return.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald's cabinet rose at 3:45 p. m. (10:45 a. m. Pittsburgh time) after a daylong session. J. H. Thomas, minister for the Dominions, announced the ministry would meet again tomorrow.

It was reported that the tri-party conference summoned by Premier MacDonald to find a way out of the grave economic crisis had failed to reach an agreement on co-operation.

MRS. CALVIT'S SUIT QUASHED

Judge Thomas P. Trimble, in Orphans Court today dismissed the suit of Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, daughter of the late Lillian Russell Moore, actress, for one-half the estate of her stepfather, the late Alexander P. Moore, ambassador to Spain.

The court held proof of a supposed oral pre-nuptial agreement between Lillian and Moore as to cares for Dorothy was not conclusive.

The daughter, however, is assured of $50 weekly under an agreement of counsel which included transfer of $40,000 from Moore's estate to that of his wife.

Mrs. Wyant Past Crisis in Illness

CROWD VIEWS 'DEATH SHOW'

While a crowd estimated at 1,000 surged about the Walgreen drug store, Wood street and Sixth avenue, early today, David Legion Bedford, 24, a Negro, re-enacted for detectives the holdup murder of a schoolmate. He showed how he had secreted himself in the store on the morning of August 4, and how, just before closing time, he had shot and killed Harry Siegel, 25, assistant manager.

Siegel, who lived at 20 Oakland square, was in the graduating class with Bedford at Fifth Avenue High School six years ago. Bedford at one time had been employed as a porter in the store.

POLICE SEEK RUNAWAY'S FRIEND

North Side Youth Says Pal Fired Without Warning As Both Fled From Homes

With a bullet wound in his stomach, Carl W. Gaertner, 16, of 49 Flocker way, North Side, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today in a serious condition.

Gaertner was found wounded in Frankstown road. He told police he had been shot down by a companion with whom he was running away from home. His companion, also a resident of Flocker way, was being sought.

The wounded lad was found by Edward Klein, of 1632 Falck avenue, North Side, a Duquesne Light Company employe. Klein said Gaertner told him he had been lying in the roadway half an hour before he was found.

HIKE TO EAST END

According to police, Gaertner and his companion left their homes shortly after 10 o'clock last night and had "hiked" as far as East Liberty, where they spent the night sleeping under a tree near Broad street.

Resuming their hike this morning, Gaertner said they walked out Frankstown road, intending to "thumb" a ride to their unannounced destination.

Without warning, Gaertner said, his companion pulled a revolver and shot him. They had no arguments and so far as he knew, no differences existed between them. Gaertner said he did not know his companion was armed.

STORY DOUBTED

Police checking up on the injured lad's story said Klein told them Gaertner's statement that he had lain in the road half an hour was probably an untruth. Klein said traffic is particularly heavy in Frankstown road at that hour and he could not have missed.

Both boys are students, Gaertner being enrolled in the trade school in Bedford avenue and his companion in an Industrial School on the North Side. Mrs. Margaret Gaertner, mother of the injured boy, said he left home last night after he had been given $1 by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Grace Gaertner, to purchase ice cream.

$100,000 Demanded, Sister Scoffs at Broker Kidnaping

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—An attorney for Charles Rosenthal, 25-year-old member of the New York Curb Exchange who, police say, has been kidnaped and is being held for $100,000 ransom, admitted today he had received letters asking for the ransom money.

The attorney, Edward Nathan, said the letters were written by young Rosenthal, seemingly under compulsion. He would not divulge their contents beyond admitting they asked for immediate payment of the $100,000. Rosenthal disappeared August 11.

The young banker vanished soon after his mother, Mrs. Nellie K. Rosenthal, widow of a wealthy New York real estate broker, had bought him a seat on the curb exchange at a price reported to be about $500,000.

Rosenthal's sister, Babette, at the Rosenthal home in Lawrence, Long Island, insisted the whole affair was "ridiculous," and that her brother was not kidnaped at all, but "at business."

City, county and private detectives have been conducting a wide search for the missing man for the past few days. One report held that one of the letters sent Rosenthal's attorney contained a reference to "Anna" and that Rosenthal, on the evening of his disappearance, went to keep an engagement with a woman who called for him at his office in an expensive automobile.

James Dairy, 56, of 202 Paulson avenue, was fined $10 and Charles Mallery, 21, of 6358 Ladson street, $5. uel E. Wheeler and other members of the homicide squad. Bedford late yesterday first confessed.

He said he was nervous and that the bullet that killed Siegel was discharged accidentally.

Bedford, tackle on the Fifth Avenue High School team from 1923 to 1925, related how he fled from the store to his home.

The revolver used in the killing was recovered last night by Detective Frank Morgan. Bedford's wife, Ethel, 23, revealed its hiding place. Morgan found the weapon in the home of another Negro in the Hill district.

BLAMES HUNGER

Bedford, who maintained innocence following his arrest, saying he fled from police who came to his home at 2016 Center avenue because he thought they wanted him for violating the liquor laws, broke down after hours of steady grilling by Lieut. Ferris and Detective Morgan and other homicide sleuths.

The Negro told how, driven by hunger, he had slipped into the basement of the store at 6:30 p. m. the night of the murder. He was chased out by two employes, but returned a short time later.

Shortly after 1 a. m. Bedford said he walked up the narrow, winding steps that lead into the prescription room.

REWARD TO AID FUND

There he confronted Siegel and Daniel Korn, of 1911 Bedford avenue, an employe of another Walgreen store. Bedford said he became nervous and the revolver was discharged. After his victim had fallen to the floor, Bedford said he stole between $8 and $9 from his clothes.

Police Capt. John Schnurr, who led a squad of police to the Bedford home, said that his share of the $1,000 reward offered by the store for the arrest and conviction of the murderers, and that of his subordinates, will be contributed to the Little Sisters of the Poor rebuilding fund.

HOOVER TO TALK OVER RELIEF AT RAPIDAN

President and Gifford Will Prepare for Launching Nation-Wide Organization

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—President Hoover planned to take his unemployment problem down to the Rapidan today, where, over the week-end, a definite start will be made on nation-wide relief organization for the coming winter.

Accompanying the Executive to his mountain camp will be Walter S. Gifford, public utilities magnate, who has just accepted the task of directing this year's program for aiding the jobless, and Fred S. Croxton, acting chairman of the President's emergency committee on unemployment for the past few months. Croxton will act as Gifford's assistant during this winter's drive.

Until Monday morning, the three men will give their attention to a set-up designed to care for the 7,000,000 men and women it is estimated will be out of work during the cold months.

In line with the President's determination that relief shall come from state, municipal and private agencies rather than directly from the federal treasury, their first consideration will be procurement of state committees, public welfare departments, community chests, family welfare societies, in localities where they do not already exist. Gifford has appealed publicly to business and welfare agencies throughout the country to see to creation of such organizations.

An early appeal for funds will be arranged. It was thought likely the national community chest drive would receive active backing from the government through wide use of the many federal publicity departments functioning in Washington.

REPAIRS DELAY ARCTIC SUB'S DIVING TEST

Storms Continue While Wilkins Prepares Ship For Plunge Beneath Ice

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth trans-Arctic submarine expedition.
By radio, via American Radio News Corporation and Radiomarine Corporation.

ABOARD THE SUBMARINE NAUTILUS, Aug. 22.—Something happened again to prevent us from beginning the diving experiments with the Nautilus. We had hoped, after drifting back to the South with the ice pack, that we would be able to put the steel ship under the surface of the Arctic Sea and make tests which would determine our future course.

The tests were prevented by a balky valve in the exhaust system, which is used when the boat is submerged.

The weather is not so pleasant, either. There were fogs and snow squalls all day, and they envelop us as we continue to drift near the edge of the Arctic ice pack.

The ice is quite heavy and the great beds of it carry us along. A strong easterly breeze keeps on beating up whitecaps. The seas are heavy and the wind is covering the ship with splashing water.

Our engineers promise us that today they will be ready for our tests at diving.

MORE FACE QUIZ IN SEA MYSTERY

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(INS.)—Federal investigators planned today to question additional insurance company officials in the hope of uncovering a clue in the mysterious disappearance of Hisashi Fujimura, multimillionaire Japanese importer. He disappeared last week off the liner Belgenland.

The importer recently took out large insurance policies.

Fifty-nine members of the crew and others of the liner were questioned on Friday, the testimony indicating that Fujimura leaped into the sea. He was said by members of the crew to have been angered when his sea companion, Mrs. Mary Reissner, actress, had gone ashore at Halifax for a short time with another man. He had quarreled frequently with the actress during the sea trip, witnesses said.

Three professional gamblers on the liner will also be questioned.

FOREIGN LEGION RENEWS CUBA WARFARE

Havana Tense Pending News Of Battle's Outcome; Three Bombs Explode in Capital

HAVANA, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—The capital was in doubt today about the outcome of fighting reported to have been resumed between government troops and a foreign legion of expeditionaries near Gibara. No statement as to its results was forthcoming from army headquarters or from opposition sources.

President Gerardo Machado was generally understood to have strengthened his belief that the revolution was nearing an end. One rumor had it that he believed the insurgency under sufficient control to return shortly to Havana, from the city of Santa Clara, where he has kept in close touch during the past 10 days with the revolution, but this could not be confirmed.

AMERICANS IN BATTLE

At the battle at Gibara, renewed Thursday after a cessation of 24 hours, the Foreign Legion made up of Americans, Japanese, French and Germans, was reported to have renewed activity against government forces in the mountains outside Gibara.

It was believed insurgent sympathizers throughout the island were awaiting further news from the Gibara expedition before deciding their next move.

Gibara started efforts at rehabilitation after being subjected to heavy bombing by Cuban airplanes during fighting for 75 hours preceding its evacuation by the rebels.

HAVANA BOMBINGS

Havana police continued their house to house search for arms, believed to have been segregated by rebels in preparation for an attack within the capital city.

6TH VICTIM OF BATTLE DIES

mother, who were also wounded. Her tiny body was riddled with buckshot. No shotgun was found in the bandits' car and whether police used shotguns in the pursuit of the robbers was not determined.

Two hundred police took part in the battle and more than 1,000 shots were fired in the 90 minutes of the running gun fight.

Starting shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon with a holdup in East One Hundred Thirty-third street, in which a young gunman shot and killed a policeman guarding a payroll, the fight was waged mile after mile in the streets of the Bronx and Upper Manhattan. Bystanders fled to safety and terror gripped many neighborhoods as the sound of booming guns was heard.

The end of the battle came when the bullet-riddled bodies of the two bandits were pulled from a taxicab, where they had been killed by police.

Walter J. Webb, 35, married, was the officer killed first. He was guarding the payroll of the Mendoza fur dyeing plant. Two bullets from a gun of one of two robbers killed him in an alley before he had a chance to pull his own weapon. Edward Churchill, 35, married, a motorcycle officer, who stopped the bandits' car, forcing it into the curb, was the second police victim. The gunmen shot him five times and then sped away.

TAXI DRIVER DIES

Finally eight cars with 20 police officers and detectives cornered the gunmen in their taxicab. The bandits' way was blocked by a truck and the fire of the policemen's guns killed them almost instantly. The driver of the taxicab, who, police said, might have been an accomplice, died with his fares.

The dead robbers were identified as Martin Bachorik, 19, a plumber, and John Brecht, 25, a printer. The car driver was Herbert Hasse, 27.

The payroll satchel, containing $4,619, was found in the cab.

It is hoped that this talk may dispel the antagonism existing between the government and the Nationalists and pave the way for Gandhi to participate in the coming round table conference in London.

WOUNDED KILLER SUSPECT GUARDED IN HOSPITAL

FATHER-IN-LAW CHARGED WITH SHOOTING

Prisoner Just Freed From Workhouse After Attack On Daughter With Hatchet

Nick Berkovich, 65, who, county detectives said, shot himself in the breast after killing Lawrence Blazina, 50, of 130 Montana street, Braddock Township, his son-in-law, lay in a serious condition in Braddock Hospital under detective guard today.

Angered because Blazina would not let him stay at his home, Berkovich met him as he was walking home from work and shot him twice, according to detectives. After the shooting, Berkovich, who was released from the workhouse last Wednesday, after serving a three-month sentence for beating his daughter, Mrs. Catherine Blazina, on the head with a hatchet, walked down the path about 100 feet and then shot himself. Berkovich's son, Frank Berkovich, of 657 Illinois avenue, Braddock Township, told detectives he was going home from work and saw his father shoot himself.

He ran toward his father. Looking further up the path he saw his brother-in-law lying dead.

Blazina was employed at the Pitcairn shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Detectives said they learned that Berkovich threatened Blazina when he told him he could not stay at his home.

Allegheny was brought up to 60 per cent by a 10 per cent increase last month.

Numbered Coupons Designed to Halt 'Chain' Voting

When Mr. and Mrs. Voter go to the polls Tuesday, September 15, they will be handed official ballots containing "numbered coupons"; that is, if they live in a precinct not supplied with Allegheny County's new voting machine.

Gilbert C. Cloonan, head of the Bureau of Elections, revealed today that the number on each coupon corresponds to the number assigned to the voter on the voting list and must be removed from the ballot before it is deposited in the ballot box.

Failure to remove the coupon before the ballot is deposited invalidates the vote, Cloonan said. The detached coupon must be displayed to the judge of elections before the voter leaves the polls.

The new ballot was designed by a state law to prevent "chain" voting.

VATICAN GIVEN ULTIMATUM BY SPAIN

Troops Ordered Out as Note Calls for Explanation of Papers Seized on Priest

MADRID, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—An ultimatum from the government demanding that the Vatican explain within five days whether or not it was familiar with documents seized from a Catholic cleric was on the way to Vatican City today.

The papers were said by the government to have been found on the Vicar General of Vitoria, Justo Antonio Echeguren, as he attempted to cross the border at San Sebastian last Friday. They were alleged to have advised the clergy to dispose of church property and send the money abroad. Since Friday such actions have been made illegal by government decree.

KNOWLEDGE DENIED

Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, said Papal Nuncio Federico Tedeschini had already assured him the Vatican had no knowledge of the documents but he desired confirmation from Vatican authorities. He described the papers as having an inflammatory effect on the people.

Several batteries of artillery and three divisions of troops will be sent to the northern provinces, Maura said, to dampen anti-government feeling which he attributed to Catholic and Basque nationalist inspiration. It is intended they shall go through maneuvers only in the hope of exercising a calming effect.

Seven Catholic newspapers of anti-Republican sympathies have been closed in the northern provinces, and similar action is planned against extreme journals in other sections. A writer has been arrested for an inflammatory article in a San Sebastian newspaper.

Three days after his father had found work to alleviate the privation which his family had suffered for more than a year, seven-month-old Michael McNulty died yesterday of malnutrition at his home, rear of 1016 Carson street, according to City Physician W. Howard Evans.

The family was evicted from their home on Cabot way only last Wednesday. They were then given the use of the second floor of the Carson street address by a kindly landlord.

GOOD SAMARITANS ARRANGE AGED HOME BENEFIT

ROOM NEEDED TO CARE FOR NEEDY

Executive Committee Seeks Funds to Buy Necessary Furnishings

The Good Samaritan Mission, South Nineteenth and Carson streets, which recently purchased the former home and school for Civil War Orphans at Uniontown, will hold a benefit dance at Palm Gardens September 9 to obtain funds for use in their work of providing for the aged at the Uniontown institution.

The Rev. F. J. Klos, J. M. Marciniak, Stanley Szczepanek and Miss M. Allen McCasland compose the committee in charge of the benefit. Since April, when the home was purchased, 20 old people have been admitted and a large number of others are seeking admission but cannot be accepted until more buildings are redecorated and furnished.

Chairs, bedroom suites and rugs are also being sought by the mission for use at the home, both of which have been approved by the Chamber of Commerce and the State Welfare Department. Clergymen and laymen of the Pittsburgh district compose the membership of the mission.

The Executive Committee is composed of Mr. Klos, rector of St. Paul's Church, South Nineteenth and Carson, president; the Rev. T. Bartnicki, vice president; the Rev. Basil Synchta, secretary; the Rev. John Kula, treasurer, and Mrs. V. Bubach and J. M. Marciniak, trustees.

The home is located at Jumonville where Col. Dunbar made his home after the Revolutionary war, and is located near the site of the grave of the Rev. Jumonville, another Revolutionary hero.

In 1870 the state erected more than eight buildings in which the home for orphans of the Civil War was maintained until 1909. Later the buildings were equipped with electricity, a hot water heating system, modern plumbing and private bath and were used for summer hotels.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Now that summer is figuratively on the wing, and fall draws nearer, social affairs are taking on an added luster, getting a bit gayer, throwing off the mantle of apathy which nearly always shrouds summer activities.

The number of folks who deserted the city for the summer season, are returning one by one, until soon, they will all be back for the big affairs of fall and winter that will keep folks in a maelstrom of activity until summer comes again.

House Guests

There is much informal entertaining for house guests going on, in fact, this seems to be the "house guest season." Eloise Dorrance, daughter of the Harold J. Dorrances, of South Negley avenue, is entertaining as her guest, Phoebe DeNormandy Flowers, of New Orleans, who arrived yesterday morning. The Dorrances plan to entertain informally for her during her visit, after which she will join her father, Herbert Flowers, in New York, in September.

Phoebe was a classmate of Eloise at Ashley Hall, where she will finish this year, Eloise was graduated in June.

"The Far East" is next, with papers on "Port Arthur" and "Singapore—The Crossroads of the World." The fall musicale on November 16 and papers on Sydney, New Orleans and Odessa, a drama day and a Yuletide party will complete the 1931 meetings.

A program of contrasts—North Cape, Cape Town and "Crossing the Equator"—is assigned for the first January afternoon; next, "Havana—the Key of the New World;" "Martinique—the Queen of the Caribees," "Hammerfest" and current events.

"The Country With the Silver Backbone and Ribs of Gold" and "The Queen City of Latin America" are the two interesting discussion titles with which February's meetings are to be ushered in, a playlet concerning Mexican women to be given at the second. The spring musicale, addresses by two guest speakers, Miss Catherine Staver and Mrs. Edouard de Mey, are listed for March. April's subjects are "Manilla," "The Light House," "Liverpool," current events and book reviews, and May's are "Amsterdam," "Nova Scotia," "Tahiti," "Shore Leave," "Sailing" and "Ships That Pass in the Night." The June outing on the sixth caps a full year.

FASHION OF PIECINGS DUE TO BE POPULAR LONG TIME

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 22 — Fashion news is still pieced together. Which means simply that piecings are still an integral part of the very smartest frocks and coats. A frock cut in empiecements has a subtle, expensive air that cannot be so easily duplicated or adapted. And for this reason alone, the fashion of piecings should stay with us for quite a while. Then, too, the piecings can be arranged in divers ways to give a desired silhouette or flare to the skirt. Piecings are much used for coats too and invariably make a success of the simplest, unfurred little model. One sees many new ensembles with frock and coat of different material, but matching color linked together by virtue of intricately cut and used piecings.

* * *

A SPLENDID example of the ensemble for general wear during the early day of autumn when the whole world moves briskly again will be seen in the two figures of the accompanying sketch. The collection chez Cheruit includes much red, especially the lovely dark red and wine shades. The majority of the openings reveal the same predilection for such tones. The ensemble sketched shows a frock of heavy crepe de chine and a coat of light woolen in a shade of dull, dark red. The one-sided arrangement is original and new. Piecings, cut in points and stitched along the edges, lend interest and an interesting line to the skirt and sleeve. The skirt has flaring godets. The coat also has much of interest to offer. First of all there is the wide, turned-back collar, something like high revers. It is trimmed at the sides with panels pointed along the top and bottom and stitched as in the case of the frock. A pointed and stitched trimming is also found on the sleeve.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin having a yoke of lace and long sleeves of lace. Her gown had a brief train of satin. Her veil of tulle was finished with a cap of lace caught with orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of sweetheart roses showered with lilies of the valley.

MOVIE TEMPEST :-: Straw-Blonde, Blue-Eyed Linda in Limelight :-: LISTEN TO THE CRITICS :-: Views and News About Current Shows

Young Star's Loss May Be Win

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 22.—Straw-blonde and blue-eyed Linda Watkins failed by one vote to become a Wampas Baby star, but as a compensation she is the favored candidate to play the heroine of William K. Howard's new picture, "Surrender."

The only thing lacking is Winfield Sheehan's okay, and that may be forthcoming any hour.

As the heroine of Hollywood's latest tempest in a tea-pot, Linda is very much in the cinema limelight right now. She is, in fact, receiving as much publicity as if she had been chosen by the motion picture publicity men for the role of baby star. Of course, Fox officials didn't make their squawk with this in view, but so it has developed.

Linda Watkins

To date, Linda has appeared in one picture, "Sob Sister", which was just been completed. Highlights of her stage career include appearances in "June Moon," "The Wild Duck" and "The Devil in the Cheese." At one time she was a student in the Theater Guild School.

As I reported yesterday Alexander Kirkland, Guild actor will play the masculine lead in "Surrender."

LATEST GOSSIP

Harold Lloyd is up to something mysterious. Apparently he has abandoned the Foreign Legion story, "Beau Pest," and is working with his staff in a hide-out away from the studio. Among the writers is said to be a well-known feminine scenarist. If so it will be the first time a woman has worked on a Lloyd story. Ernie Bushmiller, the cartoonist who draws "Fritz Ritz," also is attending the conferences. . . . Frank Fay tells me the argument between Barbara Stanwyck and Warners and Columbia still is a deadlock. He and Barbara expect to leave for the East in a short time. . . . Ruth Weston, New York society girl, has been given a new contract by R-K-O. (You may recall she met the "Trader Horn" company in Africa, and W. S. Van Dyke urged her to try the screen. But it was William Le Baron who signed her.) . . . American racketeers will invade Paris in "The Pickup." Louis Wietzenkorn's story in which Mary Astor will appear for R-K-O. . . . Al Jolson will not admit it, but rumors persist he will do a film version of "The Wonder Bar" at the end of his road tour. . . . Marjorie Rambeau has a new M. G. M. contract.

Barbara Stanwyck

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS

Hollywood boasts many strange occupations, such as the man who teaches parrots to talk in five languages and the expert rifleman who shoots holes in stars' hats and who, fortunately, has never scored a miss.

But the most profitable one is that of a little Japanese nursery owner with an unspellable name who supplies the movies with the plants and shrubs for garden sets. Jimmy Evergreen, as he is sometimes called, has more than 13,000 foreign plants in his nursery. He acts as his own research department, so studios often give him a blanket order to reproduce a foreign scene and leave the selection of the plants and the garden architecture to him.

I ran across him recently on the Richard Dix set at R-K-O. He had reproduced a complete Southern garden of the formative type for $890.

BUT DO THEY GET ONE?

Now preparing at Paramount is a story called "Husband's Holiday." Viola Brothers Shore is adapting it from a play by Ernest Pascal.

Unless something goes wrong again, this will mark Vivienne Osborn's belated debut in the talkies. The New York actress, now out here six months, was supposed to play in "The Dover Road," but this story probably will be abandoned.

Clive Brook, dependable box-office star, will have the masculine lead in "Husband's Holiday." Dorothy Tree, Broadway recruit, will have a small part.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.—Well, this will probably give you a stitch in the side. . . . The "inside" to the bomb throwing up at Miss Guinan's Inn. . . . This is what they want you to believe: that demands were made from Texas for protection and that Texas said that she needed no protection, so rack-cleers hurled the pineapple. . . . But this is what really happened, and I think it is terribly comical. . . . One of the Chicago boom guys, with no sense of humor at all, was given the "hot seat". . . . The "hot seat" being the electric chair at Guinan's asylum. . . . They press a button in back of the special chair and it gives the occupant a shock he doesn't forget for a long spell. . . . Well, this visitor from Caponeville thought a waiter was trying to be funny at his expense, never realizing for a moment that it was a nightly joke there. It wasn't funny to him, anyway, so when they all laughed at him it made him all the more furious. He returned later and tossed the bomb to give them a rougher idea.

The Star-Herald in Panama is the latest addition to your list. . . . That doctor who was so critically wounded by his nurse (who killed herself) is a quite a composer, they say. . . . And if he cannot continue his practice of medicine, he will probably write some swell music. . . . The oldest daughter of Senator Yates, who was pistol'd by his honey, may connect with a revue, says N. T. G. . . . After looking at those gowns worn by the wives of three Presidents, which will be preserved at the Smithsonian Institution, Mrs. King George doesn't have to be ashamed of her hats. . . . Your piece about May, the waitress, brought offers for jobs from Gerson's and Jay Faggen's. . . . May, however, was transferred to another branch. Goody!

I just read the new Vincent Lawrence play tentatively tagged "Washington Heights." . . . Although "Anna Christie" and "Desire Under the Elms" get by, I suspect the churches will raise quite a fuss about this one. . . . Alice White and Sid Bartlett are definitely parting—he will go back to the Coast in a few days. . . . They'll deny it vigorously, however. . . . The reason you had to pay all that duty for those three shirts is that the initials were embroidered. . . . Anything with embroidery exacts a stiff tariff. . . . Here's a recipe for you: It is christened "The Sweetheart" and goes like this: One part gin, one part Fr. Vermouth, one part Italian Vermouth, ice, shake and strain into cocktail glass into which has been dropped three raspberries. . . . I know a fellow who calls you Winchili Acuna.

Bobby Connolly had the idea for his now renowned "Changing the Guards" drill years ago, but could never get a producer to invest all the necessary coin for costuming. . . . The newest "Whoops" speakeasy in Greenwich Village is owned by of all persons, a former pugilist. . . . I like that proverb on the walls at the Dizzy Club, to wit: "Everyone is here for a purpose, even if it is just to set a bad example." . . . James Dunn who is so good in that excellent "Bad Girl" movie, once was a valet to J. Ray, the revue singer. . . . But so was Charles Farrell, you know, for Little Billy. . . . I Caesar complains about your recent crack. . . . Seems to me that you come not to praise Caesar, but to bury him!

After reading another carbon copy yesterday, William Gaston called to remind you of the time Nat C. Goodwin was playing in St. Louis and he heard that a lad working in a vaudeville theater was ifline his routine. . . . Goodwin found time to "coach" him. . . . The manager recognized Goodwin as he was leaving the theater and asked: "Well, what do you think of him?" "All I can say," sighed Goodwin, "is that one of us is lousy!" . . . The panhandlers with intelligence are collecting heavy returns in front of the Cosmopolitan, where there is a German play. . . . They speak the language fluently and beg alms of the German playgoers, who give quickly and generously. . . . You'll like Hallulah Bankhead a lot in "My Sin." She grand in it. . . . Incidentally Paramount has decided to call him "Buddy" instead of Charles Rogers, again.

Phil Plant's new girl is Edna Dunham, not Burnham. . . . Jack Anthony has a new book due soon, called "Alimony." . . . He is Stella Lang's ex-husband, who is really to blame for it. . . . She was formerly a Shubertieer. . . . The show season commences for you on Tuesday eve. . . . "The Mikado," a revival, comes in Monday. . . . There will be three new entries, however. . . . Vanderbilt, Jr., is seeking an editor for his weekly in Reno. . . . Small salary, a percentage of the profits and free board and room at Vanderbilt's ranch. . . . Tell Adam Gimbel that that rumor of his secret marriage is around again, supposed to have happened at Harry Content's house in Deal last Satdee. . . . Frances Williams says okay for your guestar, but not until her show comes to town, of course.

Your Petrolle-McLarnin ticket is under the electric fan. . . . The Aug. 15 issue of Judge wisecracked that "some musical comedy producer is going to clean up a fortune wrapping his chorus girls in cellophane." . . . The Chester Hale girls did a routine that way at the Capitol six weeks previous! . . . Marguerita Howard of the Hollywood was married Tuesday to Harold Dunn of Boston and Philly. . . . They will live in Tokyo. . . . Irving Berlin phoned. . . . Jack Osterman is on the bill with F. G. Robinson in Brooklyn. . . . Mr. Robinson, it appears, was groaning over his Palace engagement which has been deferred so much because of the Holtz program which has been held over. . . . "If you're so touch," said Osterman, "why don't you knock off Holtz?" . . . Leon & Eddie's is getting a swift response these midnights. . . . Miss Fernandez, the hat-checker there, did those grand nudes on the walls.

Those holdups of hansom cabs in Central Park have frightened away the best customers—the husbands-whose-wives-don't-understand-'em and the girls who Have To Live. . . . I. Hoffman is now doing the Beau Broadway dep't for the Morn-telly. . . . They had a terrible time with a flip-eupping drunk over at the courthouse. . . . He simply wouldn't stop making remarks, so the magistrate warned him: "Be careful what you say, for it may be used against you," and the silly yelled: "Okay, Greta Garbo!" . . . Mr. Gillingham thinks you ought to tell the ladies that the best reducing exercise is the moving of the head from side to side when they are offered another helping. . . . I found out what those metal numerals, "1-4-3," mean that dangle from the identification tags now being worn on some girls' wrists. . . . The 1 is because "I" has one letter—the 4 because of "Love" and the 3 because of "you"—Blaaaaah!—B. C.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Aug. 22.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

No matter how bad depression gets and how short we become of the necessities of life, we never seem to run out of material to put on a commission.

Will Rogers

Mr. Hoover just got ahold of a book called "Who's Who for No Reason At All" and appointed 60 men. That breaks his own record for quantity if nothing else.

He picked every bank president and corporation head who have handled their own affairs so able in the last year and half that it is their stockholders that constitute the present need.

Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers Is Hit in Stanley

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

"Young as You Feel," in the Stanley, is a typical Will Rogers picture, but like most of his shows, it displays a sense of true humor. And, like most of his shows, it's worth seeing.

The story of the old dyspeptic, who unaccountably throws his pills out the window and starts chasing a flapper does not sound like particularly original material, but the old fool in this case turns out to be not such a fool after all.

HAPPY CHOICE

The part is a happy choice for Rogers. From counting his calories and trying to manage two wayward sons to sowing his belated wild oats he is screamingly funny.

Fifi D'Orsay, as the young thing who disrupts an old man's placid life to show him a good time, is amusingly played even though her acting is forced and French accents in the movies are becoming too common to be cute.

WRECKS MR. POWELL

She creates an atmosphere of suspense which holds the amusing incidents together and maintains the interest in the picture to the last moment. Is she a blackmailer or just a real good fellow? This is a mystery until the final scene. Even when a husband appears at just the right moment to catch her in a compromising situation with the old man, it is still a mystery.

The stage show is considerably above the average for entertainment of this type. Fifi D'Orsay is even more amusing in her personal appearance than in the picture. She makes Dick Powell earn his salary this week and leaves him a wan and weary wreck.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

IT'S A CUTE story that Jack Pearl unfolded the other night. It sounded vaguely familiar to me, but what's a little thing like familiarity between a couple of pals such as you and I? The first 12 readers who send me letters telling me that their grandfathers told them the story when they were little boys will receive a prize of two blank checks on the Bank of United States.

According to Mr. Pearl, there was a little tailor who had been working in the Broadway district for many years. His shop was nothing more than a hole in a wall, but his customers liked him because his work was prompt and efficient.

One morning, in stepped a racing man who had given his clothes to the tailor for some time. He paid a small bill and was about to leave when the pants presser suddenly stopped him.

"Mr. Sullivan," he said, "for a couple weeks now, something has been bothering me. All my customers keep telling me they're making fortunes on the horses. Business is not so hot by me now and I'd like to make a little money also.

"Could you give me a tip on a good horse?"

The racing man thought for a moment. Then he nodded.

"Max," he replied, "I like you. Always did and always will. I'm going to help you out."

He looked around and lowered his voice.

"There's a horse running tomorrow at Jamaica," he whispered, "and it can't lose. The price will be a juicy one and those who are in on the know will probably clean up a fortune. You close your shop, go down to the track, bet on that horse—and your worries are over."

That's wonderful," cried Max eagerly. "But tell me, Mr. Sullivan, what's the pony's name?"

Mr. Sullivan looked highly important.

"Before I give it to you, Max," he stated, "I want you to swear that you won't tell a soul. I want you to promise that you won't even tell your own mother."

The tailor shivered with expectation.

"Mr. Sullivan," he enthused, "as one gentleman to another, I'm giving you my absolute word. I swear I won't tell a soul—not even my own mother."

The racing man breathed the name of the horse in the tailor's ear, and departed. Max did no more work that day. He was too busy figuring out his possible profits at fancy odds. . .

The following afternoon found Max at the track. He was, as you can readily understand, a highly nervous man. His horse was running in the fourth race and he could hardly control his impatience. The time finally arrived. Max pulled $500 from his pocket and ran over to one of the bookmakers.

"Here," he shouted excitedly, "bet this money on my horse."

Before the startled bookie had a chance to reply, the money had been thrust in his hand and Max had vanished in the crowd. He shrugged his shoulders and returned to his regular customers.

A few minutes more, and the race was run. There wasn't anything to it. Max's horse was a cinch winner. He breezed home by a block or two—and paid the interesting odds of six to one.

As he fought his way through the crowd, Max was in twenty-third heaven. He had won $3,000! With that money, he could rent a larger shop. Business would improve. He would have plenty of money in the bank. Ah, such sweet dreams!

He bounced in front of the bookmaker.

"Here I am," he cried happily. "I win $3,000. Give me please my money."

The bookie scowled at him.

"What are you talking about, you dope?" he shouted. "You didn't even give me the name of your horse."

Max threw his hands in the air. He looked appealingly at the crowd around him.

"He's asking for the name of my horse," he howled. "Such a thing! How could I give you the name of my horse when I couldn't even tell my own mother?" . . .

"DEAR MR. Heslinger," writes Wallace Singer, of 121 W. 12th St.: "Would you please spare a few moments of your time to read this? I know it's a little out of your line, but see what you can do.

"If you will recall, your car was struck by a taxicab on Seventh avenue, in the Twenties, some time ago. You wrote about the accident in your column, but you did not mention the driver's name because he acted like a gentleman at the time.

"You could now help me out a great deal. In order to win a bet I have made, would you kindly put a few lines in your column and tell everybody that I was the one who hit your car? Some people don't believe me. The name is Singer—badge number 50824."

You're the one, Mr. Singer. You are now famous. And I don't want you to forget that—when the offers pour in for vaudeville, the stage and pictures—I was the one who made you . . .

A REPORTER on a morning paper refused to recognize the tough times and hit his city editor for a raise the other afternoon. The editor looked at him in great surprise.

"Why, Jimmy," he chirped, "what's the matter with you? You just had a raise."

It was the reporter's turn to be startled.

"I did?" he muttered. "That's news to me. I've never received any additional dough."

"Of course not," agreed the editor promptly. "But nevertheless you've had your raise. We were going to cut your salary three weeks ago, but we decided to leave it alone. So you see? You got a raise and you didn't know it."

Depression . . .

Hoover's Relief Gives Jobs to 60 Probers at Least

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

There will be 60 volunteers on the new Gifford commission.

If they only had 10 more boys on that squad they could demand a game with Yale.

The object of the Gifford commission is to investigate anything that hasn't been investigated yet.

It has to travel some to top the Wickersham commission, which has 'em 13 reports up and one to go.

If Mr. Gifford wants to discover the worst case of unemployment in the country let him start right in on the second division of the National League. Boston, Pittsburgh, Phils and Cincinnati haven't done a thing all summer.

Then he might find out why Mabel Willebrandt won't talk. This is the first time that's happened to Mabel since Noah was in the Merchant Marine.

When they asked Mabel about the California brick situation she got so mad she started to jump out of an airplane and walk home.

Anyway, the Gifford commission should have a nice winter after they decide whether it's going to be auction or contract.

La Chatterton Both Heroine And Hero

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Hail Ruth Chatterton!

She's a martyr to movie mawkishness. She's a slave to movie impossibility. Actress that she is, the juvenile mind of Hollywood is the skeleton in her cupboard.

Courageously she carries on in "The Magnificent Lie," new film in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square. But she must have realized the drama rings false. Her talents deserve something better.

However, she could even carry her head high through a Hal Roach comic or a D. W. Griffith mob scene. She is an actress. She is Chatterton.

The film plot, based on the Leonard Merrick story, "Laurels and the Lady," can be dismissed with three or two snaps of the fingers. It is a rather cool, distorted romance between a blind ex-soldier and a cafe singer.

SOMETHING WRONG

There is something wrong somewhere. Much of the story hinges on the fact that numerous of its characters would make sport of a blind war veteran; put a joke over on him as it were. Even a famous French actress, who is cultured, sympathetic and understanding in the opening war sequence, becomes a party to it about four reels or 13 years later. We can't go for that!

The surprise is that this picture, so awkwardly conceived in spots, is not without entertainment. Its climax comes with melodramatic suddenness. A motor car smashup does what eye doctors couldn't do and the happy rainbow can be seen by all.

SAVES THE DAY

Ralph Bellamy plays opposite the star. More or less a screen newcomer, he commands attention with a part that does have its difficulties. Stuart Erwin, the goofy comedian, playing a straighter role than usual, manages to brighten up the affair.

But don't forget Chatterton. Maybe she is a little below standard in this; out of her element. Yet she is vital and real. And she's the hero as well as the heroine, for she saves the picture. So we say again: Hail Ruth Chatterton!

'Lena Rivers' Next Week On Menke's Boat

Stan, Oliver In Penn Comic

By JACK HOLLISTER

Maybe I'm wrong, but I think you'll like "Pardon Us," Stanley Laurel and Oliver Hardy's first full-length talkie, the current Penn attraction.

This is a confession, more than a statement, by one who has been heretofore anything but a Laurel-Hardy fan. To me, their pictures were something to be avoided, not seen.

Don't think that Hardy and Laurel have suddenly gone subtle or overnight attained the great heights of comedy—for they haven't. But they have produced a light, laughing picture that clever direction saves from the ravages of considerable more than necessary slapstick.

HILARIOUS PICTURE

Their first big laugh is a directorial triumph. The picture opens with the pair buying the essential equipment of a new and modern business. Abruptly, and with preliminaries, it fades out to show the prison gates opening for them. Not funny? No? Wait until you see it.

There's no use going through the story. It's one hilarious incident upon another without sense, reason or rhyme—but with laughs in everything.

The stage show, "Cool Off," presents some striking settings. Chilton and Thomas, returning in four weeks to Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar," offer a splendid dance bit. Thomas is a Negro stepper who may lack the finer showmanship of Bill Robinson, but rivals him for grace and rhythm. "Milo," clever mimic, scores heavily with imitations of everything from a mocking bird to a locomotive. Allen Rodgers, from the musical comedies, does the singing, the master of ceremonies work and the gagging. His singing is good.

THE KICK OF THE SHOW

But the kick of the show is in the Chester Hale girls. Their toe ballet number is a thing of beauty—and so is Mary Lou, the suntanned damsel fourth from your right. And you can sue me if I'm wrong.

Dick Liebert gives his usual satisfactory organlogue. The Penn concert orchestra offers its usual competent musical background. The Hearst Metrotone News shows Cuban revolution scenes, Jimmy Walker in Berlin and a number of other interesting news features.

MARKET FIRM AFTER SOGGY OPENING

Rails Continue Heavy, But Oil Show Strength; Steel Recovers Losses

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—The stock market was again reactionary at the opening today, but the selling wave which appeared late yesterday appeared to have spent its force, and the list stiffened at the end of the first half hour.

Rails were again heavy, threatening to carry the price average for leading members of this group through the bear market low of June 2. Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central lost a point, and Southern Pacific sagged ½.

Oils held steadily. Standard of California pushed up a point, then fell back to sell in line with Standard of New Jersey. If the rumored merger is accomplished, brokerage circles feel that it will be on a share-for-share exchange basis.

News at the end of the week failed to provide any impelling developments. Some shares attracted support. American Telephone and Eastman Kodak, after losing about a point, recovered fractionally. Fractional losses in American Can and United States Steel were about recovered. Case dropped a point, then rallied to sell a little higher. Trading was sluggish.

Sterling cables opened barely steady at $4.85½.

GRAY APPROVES PARK BOND

Judge Gray in the court of Quarter sessions approved the bond, in the amount of $200,000, presented by the Allegheny County Memorial Park, for the protection of its perpetual maintenance fund. This represents the amount set aside to date in the hands of the Colonial Trust Company as trustee.

Under a statute of 1909, cemeteries established after that date were required to set aside a percentage of their gross revenue derived from the sale of lots for the purpose of establishing trust fund, the income from which is to be used for the perpetual care of the cemeteries. The statute does not require the bonding of such funds but merely specifies they are to be administered to trustees and trust funds.

INDIANA MEETS CRUDE RAISE

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Standolind Crude Oil Purchasing Company, subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has met the increase in price of Mid-Continent crude oil announced yesterday by Texas Company. The new price is 70 cents a barrel for high gravity oil.

Delaware River Bridge Bonds O. K.'d

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—Delaware River Bridge Joint Commission has authorized a bond issue of $44,000,000 to provide for payment to the state of Pennsylvania, state of New Jersey and city of Philadelphia for their interests in the Delaware River Bridge and to meet the costs of a high-speed line between Philadelphia and Camden.

The commission authorized the finance committee to receive bids between September 15 and October 15 for an amount sufficient to repay the $32,187,310, amount of the interest of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Philadelphia in the bridge. Sale of the remainder will be deferred for at least six months.

General Motors Loses Patent Suit

WILMINGTON, Aug. 22.—Rubsam Corporation of Delaware won its suit in Detroit Federal Court against General Motors Corporation, in which it claimed infringement of a patent on demountable rims.

Jackson Steel Products Company, building Chevrolet motors, were held to be infringing the patents.

July Employment In Building Trade Up

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 22.—Employment in construction and contracting work continued to gain in July. Reports to the Department of Labor and Industry from 59 firms in the construction and contracting industry show a 9.3 per cent advance in employment and a 7.7 per cent gain in payrolls for July as compared with June. This gain in construction employment and payrolls is somewhat larger than that shown at this period last year. The construction report for the June-July period in 1930 showed a 5.4 per cent increase in employment and a 4.7 per cent gain in payrolls for July as compared with June. Construction employment for July, 1931, according to the index based on records for these 59 concerns, was 32 per cent less than in July, 1930, and average weekly payrolls were nearly 44 per cent lower.

RETAIL TRADE PACE SLOW

Retail trade continues at about the same rate as last week, with the movement of summer merchandise at a somewhat lower rate, according to R. G. Dun & Company's Weekly Review. Buying of fall merchandise is comparatively inactive.

Jobbers of women's wearing apparel report buying of fall merchandise at a somewhat higher rate, but men's clothing and furnishing goods are still moving slowly. The demand for shoes is irregular, the cheaper grades being in fair demand, while the better grades are quite inactive. Movement of dry goods is slow, although textiles are moderately active. Automobile sales continues slow although accessories are in fair demand.

There is but little change in the bituminous coal situation with production averaging about 20 per cent lower than a year ago, and prices practically unchanged.

Collections continue irregular with the average slow.

WALL STREET HEARS

That the problem of wage maintenance is receiving increasing attention in steel and other lines.

That opinion on public utility shares by prominent stock market operators is highly mixed these days.

That the continued sag in the railroad shares is due to lack of buying rather than any important volume of liquidation.

That the chief concern of the railroads over the market action of their bonds is the fact that it makes new financing all but impossible.

That the pool in Radio Corporation stock has had difficulty in attracting any appreciable public following.

WEATHER AIDS CROWN CORK SALES

July Business Largest In History of Company; Buys New Western Unit

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Continuing its good volume of sales of crowns, which in the first six months of 1931 exceeded those for the corresponding period a year ago, Crown Cork and Seal Company last July sold more crowns than in any previous month in its history. High temperatures throughout the country during the month stimulated the consumption of bottled beverages, while the sale of crowns for household use also increased.

Sales in the machinery and other divisions, which are secondary to the crown division, have been below last year, accounting entirely for the moderate drop in operating income during the first six months this year. Business in the various secondary lines has been carried on at a profit, although it has been smaller than in the corresponding period of 1930.

EARNINGS LARGER

For the first six months of 1931 Crown Cork and Seal had an operating profit of $645,595, compared with $777,302 in the first six months of 1930. Last year, however, Crown Cork had extra income from a tax refund of $153,382, while in the first six months of 1929 extraordinary income, principally from its sale of securities, amounted to $774,236. This year, no such large sums will be added to earnings, which will come almost entirely from operations.

Crown Cork and Seal recently acquired the business of the Western Stopper Company on the Pacific Coast. The transaction was made for cash and involved no security sale or borrowing.

AUGUST SALES GOOD

With July crown sales at a record, and weather conditions thus far in August favorable for the sale of crowns, it is not unlikely that its second half year profit will be comparable to that of the first half year. In the second half of 1930, machinery sales, which had held up fairly well in the normally good first six months, began to decline, and in addition the final three months of the year showed disappointingly small crown sales. The first half of 1931 compared with a fairly good period of a year ago, whereas the company in the second half of 1930 was operating under practically the same conditions as now prevail.

Woolworth May Raise Dividend at October Meeting

Action of F. W. Woolworth Company directors at the next dividend meeting in October will probably depend largely upon growing profits of the company this year as well as benefits derived from recent recapitalization of the British subsidiary. It is likely that at that time the board will consider an increase in the regular dividend to $3 annually from the present $2.40 basis, in addition to payment of an extra cash disbursement.

The second quarter earnings statements of the industrial and utility companies now coming to hand make favorable comparisons with the first quarter of 1931, but unfavorable with the corresponding period of last year. Utility companies furnishing electrical current and gas light to American homes have had a comparatively small shrinkage in gross income and in some cases have shown a slight increase. Encouraging reports have also been submitted by a few of the well known manufacturing concerns.

Most interests favor remaining out of the market until stocks have broken out of the trading range of recent days. They insist recent fluctuations have been meaningless and dreflected the activities of the traders on the floor rather than groups. Some observers favor scale accumulation during reactions, but advise the use of stop-loss orders with such purchases for the protection of accounts.

Wall street is vitally interested in the preliminary estimate of automobile production for July by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. This indicated a total output of about 221,000 cars and trucks in this country and Canada. The point was made that such a production total would represent a decline from June of 18.5 per cent, which would compare with a normal seasonal drop for the month of 12 per cent. Because of unemployment in the fall and winter, many economists are of the opinion that the motor car output in the coming months will be much smaller than was anticipated by market interests earlier in the year.

Quiet accumulation has been in progress in Adams Mills and the stock is selling close to its high of the year. The demand has come from interests who contend that because of the depression in business there should be a continued good demand for the cheaper products of the company. Earnings so far this year have been decidedly satisfactory and the outlook for the final six months is considered bright. There is confidence in certain quarters that the dividend on the stock will be increased from the current $2 a share annual rate before the end of the year.

Wall street is interested in the view that the officials of Woolworth are looking for an increase in sales as compared with last year, in the near future. With its low-priced articles Woolworth is in a position to benefit from the unemployment situation anticipated for the coming winter. Many have predicted that the Christmas holiday business of the company this year will be substantial because of the tendency among all consumers to economize on all classes of expenditures.

4 MIDDIES FACE DISMISSAL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—For misconduct on a recent European training cruise, a group of midshipmen is threatened with dismissal from the Naval Academy. From four to 10 middies are involved. Their names and the nature of the charges are withheld.

Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the academy, visited the Navy Department and made a preliminary report and conferred with Capt. Ralph E. Pope, acting chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

Capt. Pope said the midshipmen would be allowed to make explanations, after which the superintendent would recommend dismissal or not, as the circumstances might warrant. He said:

"On every cruise there are usually six or eight men who get into trouble."

STORE GROUP'S EARNINGS EXPAND

Street Expects Dividend On Federated Department Chain Common Stock Soon

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Establishment of a dividend basis for the common stocks of three of the four underlying companies controlled by Federated Department Stores, Inc., indicates that dividend action on the common stock of the holding company will take place in the near future.

Federated through ownership of a majority of common stock controls Abraham & Straus, Inc., largest department store in Brooklyn; William Filene's Sons Company, of Boston; F. & R. Lazarus & Co., of Columbus, and Bloomingdale Brothers, of New York.

PAYMENTS ORDERED

Directors of Abraham & Straus, Filene's and Lazarus have just declared initial dividends of 37½ cents, 25 cents and 12½ cents, respectively, and while not officially announced it is probable that this indicates a regular dividend basis of $1.50, $1 and 50 cents for the respective stocks.

Federated's ownership of underlying company's common stocks is as follows:

| | Shares Outstanding | Shares Acquired |
|---|---|---|
| Abraham & Straus, Inc. | 135,135 | 131,023 |
| Bloomingdale Bros., Inc. | 300,000 | 302,716 |
| Wm. Filene's Sons Co. | 300,000 | 240,618 |
| F. & R. Lazarus & Co. | 370,000 | 363,745 |

Earnings of the controlled stores in the first five months were about 25 per cent ahead of a year ago. Number of transactions increased while dollar sales showed only slight recessions.

SEE GAIN FOR YEAR

Net sales of the Federated group in the fiscal year ended January 31, 1931, were $13,021,652 and net earnings were $3,873,298. After deducting dividends on preferred stocks of operating companies amounting to $1,261,373, the balance available for common was $2,611,925 and the proportion available for the shares of the holding company was $2,098,959, or $2.34 a share on the 898,388 shares of common outstanding. Based on the improved showing made in the first five months, there is good reason to expect profits for the full year will show a material gain over the preceding year.

Federated was formed in November, 1929, by acquiring a majority of the outstanding common stocks of the four subsidiary store operating companies, all of which however have some minority stock outstanding.

Surplus Freight Cars Show Gain

Bear Defeat Indicated. Railroad Stock Strength. Corporation Earnings.

—By Wall Street Spectator—

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.

NARROW PRICE SWINGS and reduced volume of trading are typical of this season of the year, not only in the stock market, but also in bonds, cotton and grain. Experts also point out that stock transactions dwindle in volume as the end of a bear market approaches, which at least offers some hope that the down-swing of 1931 may have entered its final stages.

COMPARATIVE STRENGTH in railroad stocks, which have been unshaken of late by the continued weakness in rail bonds, is believed in some quarters to foreshadow at least a small increase in railroad freight rates. The Interstate Commerce Commission is considering the matter, but may not announce its decision until the latter part of the year.

FURTHER INFORMATION is now available relative to corporation earnings for the first half of 1931. A compilation of Standard Statistics Company of net income of 462 industrial, railroad and utility corporations for the first six months shows total of $527,729,000, against $931,297,000 for the corresponding period of 1930, a decrease of 43 per cent.

Losses in important industrial groups range from 5 to 90 per cent, but on the other hand sizable gains were recorded elsewhere in the list. Net income of five coal companies, for example, was 117 per cent ahead of the first half of 1930.

Twenty-eight listed companies in the retail trade were able to show an improvement of 25 per cent over 1930 and four silk companies increased their net earnings 26 per cent. For the three utility corporations which submitted reports for the period, there was a net increase of 3 per cent over the first half of 1930.

Results for the lead and zinc companies were 90 per cent under last year; the steel companies 86 per cent; automobile companies 72 per cent; auto parts 54 per cent; building and real estate 50 per cent; chemicals 29 per cent; electrical equipment 50 per cent; miscellaneous manufacturing 53 per cent; office equipment 44 per cent, railroad income fell off 53 per cent.

Old Grave Robbery Inquiry Launched

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 22.—During the past week some persons, at present unknown, in search of possible treasures, opened the grave of a man buried 56 years ago in an abandoned cemetery near Burgettstown, and left the grave unfilled, with part of the remains exposed. Officers are investigating.

SAYS HIGHWAY BONDING PAYS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The American Road Builders' Association contends bonding for state highway construction has been a paying investment in every instance. Tangible savings from lowered cost of operation were termed in excess of construction and maintenance costs in all cases.

Illinois was cited as a specific instance where savings in operating costs to motorists were estimated to be $33,000,000 since the state's improved highway program was started, an amount considerably in excess of the first cost, interest and amortization charges on the $160,000,000 highway bond issue.

Bonding is generally recommended, the association said, for both states and counties where credit is sound, a fixed annual income and where there is an urgent need for highways. The issuing of bonds should be preceded, however, by economic studies of credit conditions of the political subdivision, industrial growth, agricultural needs, population trends, transportation demands and the availability of road-building materials.

SYRIA AUTOISTS AT KENNYWOOD

In spite of the weather, which threatened rain all day, a goodly crowd turned out yesterday for the Syria Temple Automobile Club picnic at Kennywood Park.

Members received identification badges which entitled them to admission to the grandstand at the swimming pool for the high-diving spectacle, to dancing, afternoon and evening, and to refreshment tickets. Children received amusement tickets also.

Committees consisted of: J. Milton Ryall, chairman, and Ernest W. Brown, vice chairman, general; Duane H. Ammerman, dancing; Oakley Heselbarth, general utilities, and George S. Foster, publicity.

ROW ON AIRPORT ADDS TO DELAY

The "muddled" county airport lighting situation revealed yesterday during a heated session of the County Commissioners, was further from solution than ever today. As result, the installation of lights, which is holding up commercial air operations, is still further delayed.

Charging that the Commissioners had been "double-crossed," Commissioner E. V. Babcock demanded that Westinghouse equipment be installed. The discussion resulted in the holding up of the contract awarded to the MacNeil Electric Company pending further consideration.

Beggar With Bank Account Fined $25

Accused of begging on Dormont streets, Isaac Silver, 55, a roomer at 203 Devillers street, who, police said, had $147 in his possession, and a $1,500 bank account, was fined $25 on a vagrancy charge at a hearing before Burgess Charles Chamberlin last night.

According to Police Chief Ralph Miller, Silver had been begging in Dormont for several months. He admitted, police said, to having $1,500 in a Cleveland bank.

Tax Exoneration Muddle to Cost County $12,500

It is going to cost Allegheny County $12,500 for extra clerks to straighten out the muddle that the Treasurer's office got into because of tax exonerations.

Treasurer John Francies asked for and got $12,500 yesterday from the Commissioners to pay the extra clerks. He explained that the poll tax law passed at the last session of the Legislature was responsible for about half of the taxpayers who paid by mail making mistakes in calculating their payments, and their checks had to be returned.

EXTORTION CASE DAMAGE ASKED

John C. Kopf, of Bethel road, late yesterday filed suit for $10,000 damages against Constable Ben W. Smith, of Bethel Township, charging false arrest.

Kopf alleges he was arrested by Smith last Tuesday in Alderman George A. Young's office, Woods Run, on a John Doe warrant charging conspiracy to indict in connection with charges of extortion which had been filed against Smith and Justice of the Peace C. W. Linepencil, also of Bethel Township. Kopf avers he was arrested through mistaken identity.

Judge James H. Gray issued a capias for Smith's arrest and fixed bail at $500.

M'KEEVER FLAYS TAX BOARD

Abolition of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes and substitution of a Fair Assessment Board, elected by districts, is advocated by Andrew A. McKeever, of Linhart, candidate for County Treasurer.

McKeever, in making public his platform, declared the present board to be "the catspaw of the land speculator and capitalist, unfaithful to the people and worse than useless." The board is appointed by the County Commissioners.

Equalization of taxes to relieve the farmer, home owner and small businessman also is urged by McKeever.

FISH EXHIBIT ARRANGED

Under the auspices of the Allegheny Aquarists' Association an interesting collection of rare fish will be exhibited in the Phipps Conservatory, Schenley Park, from Sunday, August 23, to and including Sunday, August 30. According to William J. Stewart, Ridge avenue, president, only tropical specimens will be presented. Asia, Africa and South America will be represented. The famous fighting fish of Siam and the Chinese weather fish, carrying an electric charge, will be other features.

STORE OFFICIAL VISITS EUROPE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 22.—"France, prosperous, with virtually no unemployment, and the brightest spot in the economically depressed world. England, solid, courageous, strong, highly taxed, and troubled with unemployment and the dole system, but by no means down and out. Germany, clean and not starving, but suffering from a business and financial depression as well as a complex of Communism and Hitlerism."

Thus Albert H. Morrill, president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, and of the National Chain Store Association, summarized conditions in these countries on his return from Europe.

He went to Paris as head of the Chain Store Association to attend the International Chain Store convention. He negotiated in London with a large English chain store company that plans to take over the right to operate Piggly-Wiggly stores in England, and though the deal is not yet completed it appears likely that these stores in the near future will be seen in considerable numbers in England. There are 2,500 in America, of which about 500 are operated by the Kroger Company.

WOMEN ENLIST FOR PHILLIPS

Forty women from all parts of the city and members of the Phillips-for-Council Committee met yesterday, under the chairmanship of Attorney Suzanne T. Beatty, at a luncheon in the William Penn Hotel. Plans were discussed for a vigorous campaign for the nomination of Councilman John M. Phillips, candidate to succeed himself.

Miss Beatty urged the committee to remind the voters of Phillips' lifetime efforts to advance child welfare, the Boy Scout movement and all recreational and health-giving activities, so that:

"The city may not lose the service of one so earnest in behalf of the constructive humanities."

CLAIMS JUDGES' SLATE BROKEN

Speaking at a meeting in the "Independent" headquarters, Magee Building, Fourth avenue, today, Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for nomination for Common Pleas Court, said:

"The slate is cracked, as I predicted it would be. This is proved by the recent statement of at least one of the sitting judges. The motto of one for all and all for one is exploded."

Other speakers were Henry Tranter, candidate for County Treasurer; Councilman Charles Anderson, seeking to succeed himself, and J. Garfield Houston. Anderson assailed "the waste, dishonesty and political favoritism in the city administration." Dr. F. C. Ferrante presided.

Homeless, Confesses To Many Robberies

Charles Bonner, 24, no home, confessed in Central Police Court today robbing 10 rooming houses in the last two months, taking articles ranging from vacuum sweepers to cigarets, valued in all at about $1,200. He pawned the articles, he said. He was held over by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. Detectives Walter Monaghan and Thomas Morgan said they expected to clear 20 other rooming house robberies by Bonner's arrest.

Order Custodians For Voting Machines

The County Commissioners have authorized employment of a voting machine custodian and 10 deputy custodians for 20 days at $10 a day each. The voting machine act provides for these extra employes, whose duties are to instruct election boards in the use of voting machines and inspect the machines before delivery to polling places at election time.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Public idols go to extremes in their vocal tones on the microphones. The Prince of Wales, Lindbergh and Jack Dempsey have high-pitched voices. Babe Ruth, on the other hand, speaks in a voice that comes up like thunder.

Highest voice among celebrated men to have penetrated the eardrums is that of H. G. Wells. Most beautiful masculine voice, at least in the reading of dramatic verse, is that of Pedro de Cordoba, the actor. An actor's voice ought to be good, if anybody's.

When telephone propagandists discovered that the voice with the smile wins they were not thinking of radio. But the expression has come to be of special application to radio. Those political figures who attract the largest audiences in the armchairs are those who have a note of friendliness in their voices, even in their most serious moments. Such a list includes Ramsay MacDonald, Al Smith, Borah, Pat Harrison, Jimmy Walker.

* * *

One of the best speaking voices on Capitol Hill is that of Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan. Not only is it low and rich in quality, but he knows how to use it. He pauses at the right time. His tone is never monotonous. Barkley, of Kentucky, is one of the most sonorous speakers. He booms with the force of a Coney Island barker. Loudest of all senatorial voices, however, is Robinson, of Arkansas. There's a voice that could be—and probably has been—heard on Mars. And its volume is never diminished even when there is no great political issue at stake.

* * *

Hoover's voice is that of the average man. So, for that matter, is Franklin D. Roosevelt's. But Roosevelt is more adept in speaking from manuscript. He has more thought for his periods, to the art of emphasizing what he believes should be emphasized. If necessary he can become impassioned, even poetic, as he demonstrated in his nominating speeches at the last two Democratic national conventions. Coolidge's voice has the same New England tang on the air as of. Yet it is not unpleasant, perhaps, because the note of sincerity is so unmistakably present.

GIFFORD SEES NEW ERA IN BUSINESS

Social Obligation Is Urged To Efficient Workers; Economic Weakness Cited

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Walter S. Gifford, whom President Hoover has summoned to handle the unemployment crisis, is a fine example of the new type of social scientist in business.

Mr. Gifford looks upon business as an engine of public usefulness, not as a mere device for plunder and profit. In his address at Salem, Mass., Mr. Gifford predicted a new era in which big business will work for the fulfillment of its social obligations.

Mr. Rukeyser

A primary social obligation is to seek to assure stability of employment to loyal and efficient workers. Any company with a hit or miss labor policy which takes men on freely during booms and ejects them ruthlessly during depressions contributes to social disturbances. Numerous pioneering companies like the Procter & Gamble Company and the incandescent lamp department of the General Electric Company have done yeoman's work in relieving their employes of the deadening fear of unemployment.

Depression brings into bold relief weaknesses in any economic system. One defect was the occasional misuse of power for selfish and sometimes anti-social purposes by dominant financial and industrial groups. Such abuses, which include subtle attempts to throttle free opinion, are short-sighted, for the capitalistic class has a fundamental interest in promoting social stability.

Titans in the public utility industry appear to be quarreling. Ever since the Insull interests of Chicago acquired the Jersey Central Power and Light Company it has been whispered that the United Corporation, a Morgan-Bonbright group, felt that its territory had been invaded. Now the withdrawal of these three companies in which United is interested from the National Electric Light Association on the rumored grounds that the Insull group is dominant in the association lends color to the theory that a feud is in the making.

Legitimate competition is always in order, but in a disturbed period like the present men responsible for the direction of the affairs of a vital industry ought to find it possible to co-operate. This is no time for petty jealousies and dynastic disputes.

STEEL OUTPUT OFF 2 POINTS FOR WEEK

Autumn Increase in Steel Demand Still Expected; Prices Now Stabilized

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production slipped a couple points this week, being at about 31 per cent against some 33 per cent last week, 32 per cent the preceding week and a July average of 34 per cent, the last named figure being official. There is now little chance of this month equaling last, while in ordinary years August has been the better month by a small margin.

A distinct autumn increase in steel demand is still expected, but of smaller proportions than predicted a couple months ago, and as a dull year-end is the regular thing the total tonnage of the second half of the year would not be greatly swelled.

MARKETS DULLER

Practically all divisions of the steel market are somewhat duller than in July, but the total change is small as the market had already grown very dull. Underlying conditions are probably better than they seem to be, or than they are appraised by steel makers, for there is a tendency to undue blueness while as to prospects, steel mill customers are very reserved and probably do not give the encouragement their situation would warrant. There may easily be more increase in tonnage in the next two months than is now expected.

The whole steel market has lately passed into a stabilized condition there being no question except perhaps as to the permanence of one or two of the recent advances. Since June the quotable market is up $2 a ton on wire products, $1 on strips and various amounts up to $5 on different descriptions of sheets. Bars, shapes and plates are holding very well on a basis of 1.60c, which was the market last December.

RAIL ORDERS HELD

Good sized rail releases are expected for September and October deliveries, which would step up rail production from the present low rate. In ordinary times these rails would have been taken out in the first half of the year. There are even some 1930 rails not yet taken out. By reason of this suspended tonnage no prediction is made as to the size of the next rail buying movement, which regularly falls in the late months of a year.

Deliveries are being completed on orders placed only recently for about 19,000 tons of pipe for the Texas Company's oil line from the new East Texas field. Prospects are that about 30,000 tons will shortly be bought for an oil line in Indiana. Line pipe demand has been holding up better in this latter part of the season than was expected.

MORE STUDENTS ENROLL AT SCHOOL

Duff's College Officials Say Depression Causes Return to Classrooms

More high school and college graduates are registering at Duff's Iron City College this year than ever before, officials say. High school students who say they cannot afford to go to a university because of the depression take business courses at Duff's to prepare themselves for better times.

Many young and not-so-young persons who are out of work now are going to business school, Karl Maukert, advertising manager, said.

"They believe competition will be keener when the depression ceases and they want to prepare for the better opportunity. One man, 67 years old, took bookkeeping last year."

Duff's College has been able to cope with the unemployment situation in the placing of their graduates and students through the efforts of Ione Robinson, employment manager, Mr. Maukert said. While they are awaiting placement, students are employed in clerical work at the college.

Officials at Duff's do not believe in a quick change of personnel. The school, founded in 1839 by Peter Duff, has only had three presidents in 92 years. Peter Duff was the first president; his son, William Duff, followed him and P. S. Spangler has been president since 1906.

S. E. Bowman is principal and M. S. Johnston, secretary. The courses range from 10 months to two years. From 300 to 400 students register in night school courses and from 700 to 800 in day time courses for the winter sessions.

Seasonal Gains Indicated In Trade Activity

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

EVIDENCE OF A MODERATE seasonal revival in business is becoming apparent, but the improvement is too slight to justify any particularly optimistic predictions on the future. Unless the upward trend becomes much more pronounced, there will be no grounds for expecting any marked change in conditions during the balance of the year.

A study of the major types of business activity as shown on the Department of Commerce charts indicates that business has been drifting during the present year. Activity in most lines showed its usual gain shortly after January 1. With the coming of spring, business settled into a slow decline which reached its lowest point in July.

The slump in commodity prices has been apparent throughout the present year, but the breaks in values have not been as precipitate as they were in 1930.

Activity Below Last Year

THE CHARTS SHOWING coal production, freight car ladings, steel ingot production and bank debits are representative of general business conditions. The heavy line on each indicates a rate of activity substantially below that of last year.

The building contract and lumber production charts indicates that the usual spring spurt in construction activity was almost negligible this year. Detroit factory employment, which principally reflects conditions in the automobile industry, discloses a better rate of summer motor car production than a year ago. It will be noticed, however, that the spring output of new cars was light. Automobile companies were less eager to overstock their dealers early this year than they were in the past.

The oil production chart shows a rise in output, which is due to conditions within the industry and has no relation to market demand. The shutting of wells in Texas and Oklahoma will cause a sharp drop in this line on future charts.

Money Market Easy

THE FALLACY OF THE belief, widely held a short time ago, that easy money would stimulate business is vividly shown in the charts relating to credit conditions. Both time and call money rates are lower than a year ago. The banks are making little use of Federal Reserve credit. Bond prices, which were strong early in the year, have more recently slumped below 1930 levels, although cheap money would ordinarily stimulate the bond market.

Money in circulation has increased sharply this year. This reflects the recent purchases of government bonds by the Federal Reserve Banks. The increase in currency circulation seems to have had little effect on business.

SAW COMPANY EARNINGS UP

The Pittsburgh-Erie Saw Corporation continues to report increased earnings. Net profit for the first six months of 1931 was $180,179 compared with $178,609 in the corresponding period of 1930.

In spite of the general business depression 1930 was the best year in the history of the company.

The total annual interest charges require but $35,750. The current earnings, after depreciation, are equivalent to 7.68 times interest requirements, and about $4 per share on common stock. The regular dividends are being paid at the rate of $1.50 per share and, based upon the extra quarterly dividend, the annual return is equivalent to $2 per share.

These earnings do not reflect the benefits which will accrue to the company from the introduction of its new product, Pesco plates for grinding machines. This department is working 24 hours a day in an attempt to keep pace with orders.

The company's business is unique in that it sells none of its products, but leases them to over 75,000 customers in 38 states. It operates three plants in Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Los Angeles, and maintains 15 branch offices in the larger cities in the United States.

Electric Dividend Meet Scheduled

The meeting of directors of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company to act on dividends will be held next month. The date has not yet been decided.

REINHOLD BUYS 4 NEW TRUCKS

The Reinhold Ice Cream Company, 5170 Penn avenue, has just purchased a fourth truck in two months from the International Harvester Company, 5200 Penn avenue, according to H. Kline, general sales manager.

The four trucks were special. They were built with bodies adapted for sanitary, dry ice refrigeration.

They were selected as being the best modern type of equipment suitable for the needs of the ice cream business, Earnest Reinhold, president of the company, said.

St. Louis Shoe Firm To Build Factory

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—International Shoe Company has completed arrangements for erection of a new shoe factory at Windsor, Mo. The new unit will employ about 200 workers. This is the second announcement within a month regarding construction of additional factories. Recently the company completed negotiations for a new unit at Anna, Ill., on which work has already started.

Wholesale Price On Gas Advanced

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Standard Oil Company of New York has advanced wholesale gasoline ½c a gallon f. o. b. tank car with prices as follows—6½c in Boston and Providence, and 6½ at Portland. The Boston price is ½c higher than that established by Shell Eastern Petroleum Products, Inc., a few days ago.

Chicago Reserve Rate Unchanged

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago made no change in the re-discount rate, which is 2½ per cent.

A Message

To those companies that are in need of motor trucks and yet do not feel in a position to purchase new ones:

We are closing out our entire stock of good used trucks and have slashed the prices to unbelievably low levels for immediate sale. There are all makes, styles and sizes, and all are in good running condition.

Know Your City

Pittsburgh was incorporated as a Borough in 1794 with a population of less than 500 and an area of less than one-half square mile.

Today the city ranks fifth in population among Metropolitan districts, with an area of only 51.37 square miles in the corporate limits as against 139 square miles in Detroit and 442 square miles in Los Angeles.

Allegheny County—the real Pittsburgh—has 122 independent municipalities besides Pittsburgh, with a total populatin of over 1,374,600.

No other city in the United States, except Boston, has as large a proportion of unannexed population as Pittsburgh. In recognition of this situation the voters of Pennsylvania have adopted an amendment to the State Constitution to create a consolidated city of which all the existing 123 municipal governments shall become parts, thus making Pittsburgh a city of 1,400,000 population, outranking Detroit and Los Angeles and following Philadelphia.

JIMMY MOORE BLOCKS WEST BOOM

THE OLD SARGE, Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis club, already is looking ahead to his second successive world series battle with Connie Mack and shaping his plans accordingly. The club has not yet clinched the National League pennant—its fourth in six years—but you wouldn't want to bet a lot of scads that it won't, and neither would anyone else.

Gabby is shuffling the deck and plans a new deal of the Cards when his forces tangle again with the Athletics, who will be bidding for their third straight world title. For one thing, he doesn't intend to ease the task of Lefty Grove, the ace of Connie's sharp-shooting staff, in this series. He is planning to send a line-up of all righthand hitters against the great southpaw and also against Rube Walberg when that wrongsider performs on the mound. The lefties will not get another chance to make suckers out of Jim Bottomley and other left-hand batters of the Cards.

Jim Bottomley

JUST NOW, BOTTOMLEY is staging a fine comeback, playing regularly at first base, with Rip Collins on the bench because of injuries. Collins will be ready for the series, however, and will be in there when the southpaws chuck 'em up for the Athletics. Street was able to bench Watkins, a lefthand batter, in the series last year, but had to keep Bottomley on the job, and Sunny Jim was the big bust of the classic, which went to six games, thanks to some fine pitching by the Cardinal crew.

BOTTOMLEY GOT ONE whole hit—count it—in the entire series. It was a double off Walberg in the third game, in which Shores and Quinn also pitched for the champions. He didn't get a base on balls until the last game, in which he drew two off Earnshaw. He was at bat 22 times and wound up with the magnificent swatting average of .045. He struck out nine times, four times in a row. This after he had been the batting hero of the 1926 series against the Yankees, which the Cardinals won, with Rogers Hornsby as manager.

COLLINS AND Capt. Frankie Frisch, of the Cardinals, are turnover batters, who can change around to suit the pitching they are facing. All of the Cardinal pitchers who will get into the series bat righthanded. Wally Roettger will be in right field in place of Watkins when the Athletics use a lefthand pitcher. Against righthand pitching the Cardinals will be able to muster three lefthand hitters, Frisch, Bottomley or Collins and Watkins.

VIGNETTES OF SPORT

YOU'LL HARDLY RECOGNIZE conditions among the old Big Three of football this fall . . . Harvard has its old star player back in the person of Eddie Casey as head coach, to succeed Arnold Horween; Yale will have Benny Friedman, the former Michigan star, moulding its attack, and Princeton will have Al Wittmer, former Allegheny High School and Princeton ace, as head coach . . . Wittmer is getting into print a great deal these days with his interviews on the subject of Princeton football . . . For one thing, he says he'll not go in much for dressing room inspirationalism, which he brands as mostly bunk, in contrast to the teachings of his predecessor, Bill Roper, in whose footsteps he was expected to follow . . . And, for another, he is going to adopt the Warner double wing back system of offense, running all plays from a single formation, instead of having a different lineup as the basis for each play . . . He's also an advocate of stiffer schedules for the Jungaleers, seeing no benefit to the team in easy victories over setup opponents.

Bill Brenzel

OUT IN THE Pacific Coast League, they think they're the greatest minor circuit in the game beyond doubt. They can't see the American Association and the International League at all and will name you many names of big league players who went up from their loop to make the grade with the utmost ease . . . As a matter of fact, they think the National League isn't so hot, and no less an authority than Oscar Vitt, manager of the Hollywood Stars, first-half champions, and former Detroit and Boston American League star, is on record as saying that he knows of some clubs in our league that would have the toughest sort of sledding in the Coast League . . . Maybe he's been reading and hearing about the Robins.

In answer to a query from a Coronado's reader, the W. & J.-California Tournament of Roses game in 1922 was not broadcast direct from the Rose Bowl, but was put on the air from Station KDKA, which relayed news bulletins from the field . . . They say of Bill Brenzel, the young catching star of the San Francisco Missions, who has been purchased by the Pirates for delivery next spring, that he possesses the strongest throwing arm in the Pacific Coast League and is a swell handler of pitchers . . . ## THREE BRITISH STARS REACH SEMI-FINALS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 22. (AP.)—Between Great Britain and her second straight triumph in the women's United States tennis championship stood today the formidable figure of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, six times holder of the title.

A series of smashing victories in the quarter-finals yesterday gave British stars three of the semi-final round brackets, with only Mrs. Moody left to carry on for the United States.

MRS. MOODY FAVORITE

Despite the impressive manner in which Betty Nuthall, the defending champion; Phyllis Mudford, and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall swept into the semi-finals, none is accorded better than an outside chance of halting Mrs. Moody's march to her seventh national championship.

Pairings in the round before the final today pitted Mrs. Moody against Miss Mudford and Miss Nuthall against Mrs. Whittingstall.

It was Mrs. Whittingstall who furnished the one big upset of the quarter-finals. Flashing a deadly net attack, the British player put out Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., previously considered a sure semi-finalist, in a brilliant three-set duel, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6.

MISS NUTHALL WINS

Mrs. Whittingstall had been overlooked in advance calculations especially as she had been restricted to doubles duty in the recent Wightman Cup matches.

Mrs. Moody dropped only three games in eliminating Dorothy Weisel, of Sacramento, Calif., 6-1, 6-2, and Miss Nuthall had no trouble with her countrywoman, Mrs. Dorothy C. Shepherd-Barron, 6-2, 6-1. Miss Mudford had no had a fight on her hands to put out the American No. 1 player, Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, of Oakland, Calif., 4-6, 6-3, 8-6.

TWENTY GRAND TRAVERS CHOICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Twenty Grand, the Crown Prince of the 3-year-old turf division, starts in the sixty-second running of the $5,000 added travers today and barring another of Saratoga's famous upsets, the star of Mrs. Payne Whitney's barns should send his total earnings past the $200,000 mark.

Five other 3-year-olds have been named for the rich mile and one-quarter jaunt, but there is no Mate or any horse like the 3-year-old champion to oppose Twenty Grand. A. C. Bostwick failed to name Mate for the event, when the entries closed nearly two years ago, with the result that the son of Prince Pal will stay in his stall while Twenty Grand goes after his fifth victory of the year. He has won the Wood, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont stakes and the Dwyer.

Twenty Grand's chief opposition probably will come from his stable mate, St. Brideaux, or Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's Sun Meadow.

DOEG AND LOTT GAIN FINAL

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Johnny Doeg and George Lott, national doubles tennis champions for the past two years, gained the final round of Newport Casino team play yesterday with a five-set victory over Frederick J. Perry and G. Patrick Hughes, British Davis Cup team. The scores were 5-7, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

The champions, however, face the battle of their career today, for Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, sensational Californians, who have tasted defeat only once this season, took the other final bracket by upsetting another pair of West Coasters, Jack Tidball and Lester Stoefflen, in straight sets, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Before engaging in the doubles finals, Vines will get in the initial singles windup with Perry. Both qualified Thursday, Vines defeating John Van Ryn and the Briton advancing when Sidney Wood was defaulted because of a leg cramp.

Jimmy Thomas Wins Over Matty Mathison

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 22.—Jimmy Thomas, Pittsburgh Negro bantamweight, scored a technical knockout over Matty Mathison, Toronto, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. A right-hand smash ruptured a blood vessel in Mathison's nose in the fourth round, and he was unable to answer the bell for the fifth chapter. Thomas weighed 120, and Mathison 118½.

BOWL ON TRAIL OF GOOD SUB

With another eleventh-hour cancellation of a bout by Jackie Rodgers on its hands, the Meyers Bowl management is frantically trying to land a worthy fist-flinger to take the place of the local Negro thumper against Vidal Gregorio, the Spaniard, in its main bout next Monday night. Failing, it may revise its program and put in an all-star card. A decision will be reached today.

Rodgers returned yesterday from Willie Davies' camp in the mountains near Bedford, suffering from a throat infection, cold and a lame shoulder and his doctor ordered him to call off the match. In his most recent appearance, at Hickey Park, Thursday night of last week, he made a poor showing against Mose Butch, losing the decision, as a result of which he also almost lost the Gregorio match. If Butch had not injured a hand, he would have been substituted immediately for the former local favorite.

BAXTER TO BOX BOJARSKI

While the Bowl program is up in the air, Hickey Park is all set with its feature bout, Thursday night of next week, Manager John L. Hernon returned this morning from Erie, where he attended the Jimmy Thomas-Baby Face Mathison match and secured the signed contract of Frankie Bojarski for a battle with Charley Baxter, formerly of Louisville, now of the North Side. The club had a great deal of difficulty landing an opponent for Bojarski, who is a southpaw, until Baxter was mentioned, and then Bojarski is said to have balked, on the ground that Baxter is a dangerous right hand puncher of the type calculated to raise havoc with a portsider.

Baxter, only 19, is managed by Charley Jones, who has just returned to make his home here after many years of roaming since he branched out as the manager of Tommy Ryan. The youngster has a fine record, which embraces only two defeats, one on a foul, in a career of more than 60 bat-

The Boston Madison Square Garden is planning a Jimmy Maloney-Mickey Walker battle for an early date.

Eddie Kaufman, manager of Sunny Jim McVay, craves action for his Negro middleweight and claims all of the big boys are ducking him. His offer of a $500 to $1,000 side bet on a match against any local opponent still stands. Kaufman says and he wonders why the line does not form on the right.

PARKS DOUBLES FINALS TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

DETROIT, Aug. 22—Final contests in women's singles and doubles and semi-final frays in men's singles comprise this afternoon's card of competition as the National Public Parks tennis championships, in progress on the courts of Gladwin Park here since Monday, draw rapidly toward conclusion tomorrow.

MRS. DUEKER WINS

Mrs. Virginia Dueker, St. Louis ace, and Mary Zita McHale, Dallas contender, have justified their respective seedings at number one and number two and will clash for the women's individual trophy, which Mrs. Dueker is seeking to defend. In feminine doubles, Mrs. Dueker will again strive to retain a crown, she and her fellow townswoman, Ann Lindemann, being slated to tangle with Miss McHale and her Dallas partner, Charlotte MacQuiston, for ultimate honors.

George Jennings, municipal premier for the past three years, encounters Fred Royer, Oklahoma University flash, in the upper semi-final of men's singles, while in the lower bracket, Dooley Mitchell, Washington star, battles George O'Connell, former Pittsburgher, at present located in Chicago.

MITCHELL ADVANCES

Mitchell, runner-up to Jennings in 1930, came through to the penultimate frame yesterday at the expense of Harold Bartel, Cleveland slasher, who had eliminated Frank Bricia, of Pittsburgh. O'Connell downed Bud Markey, Washington, 5-7, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs. Dueker breezed through Ruth Martinez, Washington satellite, and her final rival of a year ago, in decisive fashion, 6-2, 6-3, yesterday morning. Meanwhile Miss McHale accomplished the downfall of Helen Germaine, of New York, 6-0, 8-6.

Now they say Grove will pi his arm out this season and ne be any good again. That me Lefty will probably be on sale the notion counter by October so you better line up now.

BABE RUTH BOOSTS HOMER TOTAL TO 600

Mrs. Curry Deposes Mrs. Blair As Women's City Links Champion

MACKS DEFEAT CHISOX; NATS BEAT TRIBE

Associated Press

Babe Ruth has made 600 home runs in his Major League career. In the third inning of the Yankee-St. Louis game yesterday he drove one of George Blaeholder's offerings far over the bleacher road at Sportsman's Park. It was his thirty-fifth four-bagger of the current season and brought his total for the 18 years of his Major League career up to 600 a mark never before attained or even threatened by any other Major Leaguer. The Babe reclaimed the pellet from the youngster who found it out in Grand Boulevard, giving in exchange $10 reward and a new autographed ball.

YANKS GET WIN

The homer started the Yanks off on the winning rally in their 11-7 victory over the Browns. Lou Gehrig duplicated the swat a moment later and before the inning was over the Yanks had five runs and the game safely tucked away.

A few other American League teams tried to duplicate the Yankee swatting feats in yesterday's game. Philadelphia's champion Athletics and the Chicago White Sox hammered out 24 hits between them and although the Sox had a 14-10 edge in the hitting Philadelphia won 15 to 12.

Washington's batters rammed but a total of 15 hits off Clint Brown and Pete Jablonowski to take the fourth game of the series from Cleveland, 6 to 3.

DORMONT, BOOK NINES WIN

Dormont, Books and Homewood triumphed in the City League last evening. Dormont blanked J. L. Thomas, 2-0. Books defeated the Buicks, 4-1, and Homewood walloped the North Side Civics, 12-1.

In the Crafton-Ingram Church League, Presbyterians and St. Phillips battled to a 4-4 deadlock. Edgeview won over the Ponzi nine, 6-1, in the North Side Twilight league.

The Homestead Grays trounced the Baltimore Black Sox in their night game at Youngstown, 9-2. Vishn Casey, hurling for Bellevue, pitched a no-hit game against Ben Avon, Bellevue winning, 4-1. James Mix, Harrison A. C. southpaw, pitched a no-hit game against Jeannette, winning 4 to 0.

the clinch. Erv hoisted a little fly to Richbourg and the fine slab duel was over.

Cantwell blanked the Pirates when he faced them in Pittsburgh about one month ago. The only run made by the Pirates in yesterday's fight was unearned, although Ben should give Walter Maranville a card of thanks for the Rabbit appears to have spoiled at least two Pittsburgh tallies, perhaps more.

Grantham started the fourth by reaching first base on a fumble, the Pirates trailing by one run. Traynor socked a hard one over second, but Maranville leaped toward the ball and made a brilliant force play. Had the ball gone through, Grantham probably could have gone to third.

In the sixth the Pirates had the tying run on third and the winning marker on first with two out and P. Waner up. Paul's smash toward left was so deep that Rabbit could not have nailed him at first even after his fine stop of the rocket, but the slick veteran got the ball to Maguire a jiffy ahead of Grantham for the final out of the inning.

Walter Berger hit a homer into the leftfield, over the leftfield wall in the first round. A smart play presumably on the part of Skipper Bill McKechnie had a lot to do with what proved to be the winning run. Spohrer singled to start the inning, and he swiped second on the first pitch. Urbanski sacrificed and Maguire singled to finish the tally.

Cantwell yielded but six hits, Brame allowing only seven.

COX STOPS ANDERSON

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Vic Cox, Indianapolis lightweight, stopped out Eddie Anderson, Cuba, Wednesday in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at Washington Park here last night. Cox weighed 132 pounds.

LEBEDDA WINS SWIM TITLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Albert LeBedda, Homestead, Pa., won the National junior 440-yard free-style championship yesterday in an A. A. U. swimming meet. His time was 5 minutes 35 3-5 seconds.

Two other championship races assigned to the Louisville meet will be contested today. They are the men's and women's junior 100-meter back-stroke events.

Helen Lee Smith, 13, Indianapolis, set a Kentucky-Indiana record of 6 minutes 39 3-5 seconds in winning the women's 440-yard free-style race yesterday.

RACING DATE CHANGED

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(AP.)—The $25,000 added Hawthorne Gold Cup, feature of Hawthorne's autumn meeting, will be run October 8 instead of October 10. The change in dates was made by Hawthorne officials, so as not to conflict with the Notre Dame-Northwestern football game October 10, which will be played in Soldier Field for charity.

GRAYS BATTLE SOX TWICE

The Homestead Grays are going after a clean sweep in the double header which they will play at Forbes Field this afternoon, first game at 2 o'clock, with the Baltimore Black Sox. The chances are that Manager Posey will depend upon the benders of Smokey Joe Williams and Lefty Foster to snare a couple of victories.

The Baltimore club's pitcher will be chosen from Yokely, Lee, Stanley, Cooper and Flornoy with Cooper and Lee being favored because they have been more effective against the Grays this season.

This will be the second appearance of the Black Sox in Pittsburgh this season. They split a twin bill with the Grays here July 4, winning the afternoon game, 6 to 0, and compelling the Grays to travel 10 innings in the evening contest at Forbes Field before gaining a 4-to-3 verdict.

Baltimore's pitching staff is rated one of the best in the east this season and with Cooper and Lee likely to be back against Posey's gang this afternoon the spectators will see some thrilling battling.

Today's games close the series between the clubs which opened last Sunday in Washington. Tomorrow the Grays are scheduled to play at Canton, O.

Washington Wins Typos Baseball Title

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Washington's representatives were crowned champions of the Union Printers baseball tournament for the eighth time in 10 years yesterday when they beat Cincinnati, 7-6, in 10 innings in the final game of the tournament.

Washington entered the final round earlier in the day by defeating Chicago, 1930 champions, 13 to 7, while Cincinnati downed New York, 7 to 4.

Charley Britton, of Pittsburgh, was drafted by Cincinnati and relieved Hulsbusch in the title game.

RIVALS BATTLE IN FINAL FOR THIRD TIME

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

After a year's absence, the women's city golf championship is back in the safe keeping of Mrs. Margaret Curry. It returned yesterday as the direct result of Mrs. Curry's 3 and 1 triumph over Mrs. Eva Blair, the defending champion in the final match of the annual city title tourney played over the Schenley links.

The match marked the third year in succession that the two star women golfers have battled for the title. Mrs. Curry won in 1929; Mrs. Blair in 1930 and Mrs. Curry again yesterday. Hence, Mrs. Curry is one up on her local rival, but other years are coming.

Mrs. Curry exhibited some plain and fancy putting to score her triumph yesterday. She finished the first 18 holes 6 up on Mrs. Blair. The defending champion put on a very stubborn battle in the afternoon, shred some of Mrs. Curry's lead, but not enough to enable her to keep the championship.

Mrs. Curry had a medal score for the morning round of 41-41—82, very consistent golf. Mrs. Blair's was 47-43—90. Quite a difference there.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Curry had another 82 and Mrs. Blair's 77. Her 33 coming in was the best for eight holes of the day.

An Oakmont entry, Miss Betty Abernathy, led a field of star women players in the ladies' invitation tournament at Stanton Heights yesterday with a card of 84-4—80.

Mrs. Thomas H. Thorn, of Wildwood, and Mrs. A. M. Pesh, of Uniontown, tied for low net honors with scores of 81. In the second division, Mrs. S. E. Donald, of South Hills, led with 113-36—77.

Mrs. Hudson G. Samson and Mrs. B. A. Kerr tied in the play for club members with 76s.

Fred Baroni Leads Pros at Conneaut

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., Aug. 22.—(AP.)—Fred Baroni, of Oakland Beach, won the monthly tournament of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Professional Golfers' Association yesterday at the Conneaut Lake Park course, turning in a score of 150 over 36 holes.

Baroni's score was six over par, but the field had to struggle against a strong wind that made play difficult.

Ted Luther, Corry, placed second with a total of 154. Enis Millar, Erie, was third with 156, and Joe Higgins, Erie, and John Capebianco, Edinboro, tied for fourth with 158.

Dreadful Story About a Mother Who Drinks

If you're looking for a pretty picture—

A romance of moonlight and roses—

A jolly skit to make you laugh—

Then don't read any further—

For Patsy's letter is none of these. It tells a wretched, sordid story . . . a shocking story. "Then why print it?" you ask. I am printing it because it is a true story. A true story of what's happening all over America. A true story that you and I need to think about.

It's the story of a mother and her booze.

Ugly words? Yes—but not half so ugly as the reality.

Dear Miss Martin:

MOTHER DRINKS

Any solution you can offer to my problem will be greatly appreciated. How much so few can know. I am heartbroken, and I can't seem to do anything about it, myself. My mother and father have been divorced ever since I can remember, and I have always lived with my mother. She is the sweetest mother any girl could have—when she is herself. Young, pretty, full of pep, she has only one bad fault . . . A love for liquor. And she isn't satisfied with just a drink or two—But gets so drunk she can hardly move. I have had to put up with that all my life, and I am so disgusted and heartsick that sometimes I feel like running away and ending it all.

She goes on these drinking spells two or three times a month, and stays on them for a week at a time. From early morning until she goes to bed, she is in a drunken state. I have talked to her many times, but it seems to do no good.

As far as I can see, she has no reason for acting this way. I certainly don't give her any cause and, while we're not wealthy, we are comfortable, so she has no real worries, and I can't see what she does all this drinking for.

EMBARRASSED DAUGHTER

It only takes a few drinks for her to show the effects. After four or five, she is pretty well "shot." But she thinks that nobody notices this, so she will go down town to her club, or any place she feels like, and make a show of herself.

I have never been able to ask my friends to the house—except on the spur of the moment, for fear of the way my mother will be. She has constantly embarrassed and humiliated me ever since I can remember, so you see I have good reason to be afraid.

I am at my wits ends to know what to do. She is slowly but surely killing herself with rotten liquor. She is breaking my heart. If anyone can help me, I will be thankful from the bottom of my heart. PATSY.

A PROBLEM

It is not a happy story, is it? Of course it isn't. It's a dreadful story. And one that you didn't often hear. Back in the bad old days of the saloon, because the vast majority of housewives didn't go to saloons. But such cases are becoming more and more common.

What are we going to do about it?

What can Patsy—and scores of other Patsys in the United States—do, to save the mother who is "slowly but surely killing herself" because it has become the smart thing to guzzle hooch?

WHAT IS BEAUTIFUL? -:- -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THE ZULU THINKS THIS EFFLY BEAUTIFUL
OUR IDEA OF BEAUTY
EVERYONE AGREES THAT THIS IS BEAUTIFUL · NO MATTER OF WHAT RACE . . . ESPECIALLY ITS OWN MOTHER.

Beautiful is as a man thinks. And he thinks, in spite of himself, pretty much along the lines of the world he was born in. Religion and politics, two pugnacious dinner partners, are the objects of more varied and delightfully heated opinions than any others in the world; but "What is Beautiful" comes padding along in the dust not far behind!

Our magazines and our movies, and our fiction, and the woman we choose to love and live with, have built up for our admiration a type of beauty that we believe in. It varies, but not out of bounds into the beauty that is beautiful to other races. It may be night-haired or silver-blonde or nut-brown, but there is the same bright pair of starry eyes, the luscious red lips like a brush-stroke on ivory or delicate tan, the deeply curled hair, the fair skin, the shaped eyebrows, the hint (or perhaps the smiling!) of make-up—and there she is—OUR beauty.

The Zulu does not think her beautiful. She looks like buttermilk to him—a queer idea of a beautiful young woman and desirable. Faded. No richness of tone. For him the young woman on the left—brown-skinned, with the latest coiffure, bone beads, beads for a skirt, brass-studded collar, with a lovely flat nose, and little sticks stuck in her hair for vivacity.

And NO ONE save the loving eye, or the artist eye, thinks old age's face beautiful!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Walk Independently

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please save the blissfulness of a pair of foolish newlyweds.

My wife insists that when a lady and gentleman are walking, the lady holds the gentleman's arm. When crossing a street, she claims that the gentleman should assist the lady by taking her arm.

I state that in no instance does the lady hold the gentleman's arm, except when he offers it at a hazardous or otherwise inconvenient crossing.

I have learned a great deal from your most helpful column and sincerely hope it will never be discontinued. Best wishes for your continued success. E. F.

You are right . . . the best form is for the couple to walk independently, except, as you say, when they are crossing at an inconvenient place. Then the man offers his arm, or guides the woman by lightly putting his hand under her elbow.

Thank you for your kind words and your kind wishes.

In These Days—Well

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it good form for a woman to ask a divorced man to her home for dinner, when he is a good friend of both husband and wife? My husband thinks it shows poor taste. What do you think? A. T.

If the invitation is extended by the wife as the hostess of the home, and if the husband is to be present at the dinner, I cannot see why in the world it should be considered poor taste. Is the point that the man is divorced? If that is the barrier these days—well!

Cleopatra wasn't dumb—
I'm sure she never popped her gum.

Up pops a new problem, presented by one who signs himself "A Young Chicago Lawyer."

Mr. Y-C-L wants to know why girls chew gum.

He doesn't object to smoking, because that doesn't make any noise. But the incessant popping of gum to right and to left of him has put his nervous system completely out of order, and he announces plaintively that he wishes somebody would do something about it all.

I hadn't really given the problem of gum-chewing any heavy thought, until Mr. Y-C-L started shooting. It seems a harmless enough pastime, but as he points out, it is hardly aesthetic.

On the other hand, gum-chewing after meals is said to promote digestion, keep one's teeth white, and act as a breath deodorant.

Just leaping in the dark at a conclusion—and mind you, I may be wrong—I'd say that if you must chew gum it's better to do it with the same privacy you reserve for brushing your teeth.

I understand that either chewing or munching peanuts isn't done in our best drawing rooms. But we'll let Mr. Y-C-L speak for himself:

"Dear Dorothy Roe:

"I wish you would write something about chewing-femmes. I mean the AESTHETIC phase of it.

"If there is anything that tends to make the average girl look like a goat, or a cow, or a sheep, chewing its cud, that is chewing gum. Some of them go to the extreme of blowing gum bubbles a yard.

"In the past 12 months I dismissed no less than five stenographers, who were otherwise efficient, for continually chewing gum in my office during business hours. It gets on one's nerves! Alas, so little has been mentioned about the aesthetic impression given by a gum-chewer.

"A cow is a ruminant animal—that is her physiological fate. It is excusable.

"But for a girl (who should try to imitate the angels) to imitate a cow—that's inexcusable.

"Gum-chewing is even more disgusting than drinking and smoking put together, inasmuch as it is continuously done—or rather, overdone.

"One may see, any time, anywhere, girls, otherwise fine, cultured creatures, who chew their gum with as much seriousness as if the wheels of industry depended upon the action of their jaws.

"I await your article on the above.

"A Young Chicago Lawyer."

So there you are, my children.

And the young Chicago lawyer has mentioned one point that might bear consideration—the fact that he discharged five stenographers for chewing gum. Many employers have a horror of the habit, and many girls have lost good jobs on its account.

But I do think Mr. Y-C-L was a little severe—he might have requested his stenographers to cease chewing in the office, before up and firing them.

What do you think? Write me, care of Universal Service, 63 Park Row, New York City.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Any woman can have a pretty back if she doesn't crush the scales or grow lumpy. Nice backs are important now that frocks are long and graceful. The trick is to carry the body tall, stretched to the utmost limit, hips held back, tummy flat, with this posture there can be no rolls on the back of the neck, no collar bones looming up, no awkwardness of movement.

Heredity has a good deal to do with premature graying of the hair, and also with the coming of wrinkles. Complexions inherit family traits. Blondes, with delicate skins, are more likely to gather turkey tracks earlier than their brunet sisters. Women who hang onto their youthful complexions are those who begin early to use nourishing creams, to keep the tissues firm and resilient with cold water, and who are naturally endowed with sunny dispositons that don't court frowns and pulled down mouth corners.

Beautifying, nowadays, is a matter of hygiene and good sense, no monkey stunts at all. Different from the old days when skin flaying went on apace. Murderous bleaches, strong enough to take the enamel off the kitchen sink, were applied recklessly and ruthlessly. Paraffin was pumped into wrinkled tissues and the charlatan who promised new faces for old ones raked in the money by the bushel. We are stepping along.

Household Hints

That heavy, disagreeable odor in a kitchen usually means a dirty and greasy stove.

A parsley plant growing alongside of the mint comes in mighty handy for garnishing the summer salads.

To avoid the flattened appearance so often seen in tucks, place the iron and end and run the tucks over it, holding the goods firmly with the tucks running downward.

To keep plants watered when away from home, place in a zinc tub as many bricks as there are flower pots; pour enough water in the tub to cover the bricks and place a pot on each brick. The bricks will soak up enough water to keep the plants in good condition for a long time.

Minimize Report Cards

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Personally, I believe that school report cards do more damage to child natures and do more to stir up emotional maladjustments than any other factor in a child's school life.

And it surely isn't the fault of the small inanimate printed card. It is the fault of our attitude, the horrible sense of importance with which we surround it.

The child who loiters, who plays outdoors until after six on nights when he has the fatal missive in his coat pocket for fear of parental ridicule or scoldings is indeed an unfortunate child endowed with most unwise parents.

A report card should merely be an indicator by which parents can glean some knowledge of the place and subject in which the child needs help or encouragement. It should never be a standard by which one child in a family is adjudged brighter, more successful, more of a credit to his family than another child in that circle. But often it is just that.

Report cards should be gone over by parent and child in strict privacy. Poor marks have little place in a dinner-table broadcast—not if you want your child to keep on trying.

And the fact that a child fails consistently in one subject doesn't mean he is sub-normal nor that he is destined to be the horrible example of the family.

There are numerous types of mentalities, and usually the greater aptitude a child has for an especial study the less he has for a varying opposite type.

HELP your child on the subject which gets poor marks, but never discourage him by making fun of him nor by odious comparisons with other children. Talk with his teacher and see if you can find the root of the trouble. If the child is older—say a high school student, see if he can't be switched to a course where he is more interested, and with the subsequent better work. If your child is slow with his head, help him find work with his hands. It won't necessarily mean that he will stop thinking, but that he will BEGIN thinking, really thinking, on a subject because of his greater interest in it.

Use report cards as guides to lead you to helping your child. Don't make them the bugbears of school days.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian's Friendly Lecture Ends

I did not have to wait long for Lillian's answer to my unspoken question as to the reason for the change in feeling toward me which she had declared was Philip Veritzen's.

"Phil doesn't know it but domesticity has no attraction for him," she said. "When he first met you, the Dickybird and you weren't hitting it off particularly well; Junior was nowhere in evidence—you remember you had left him with Katherine down on the farm because you didn't think the city air was good for him; you were sponsoring Mary, whose talent he spotted at once, and he didn't receive exactly a drab picture of you from me when I was 'selling' you—I didn't have to try very hard, incidentally—as the last word on authentic data for historical productions. By the time Junior and Dicky appeared in the offing he was hooked through the gills and not even imagining a get-away. He's been faithful to his idea of you—in his fashion—longer than I ever thought possible for old Phil. But your Christmas celebration which simply exuded happy domesticity at every pore, and following close upon that the news of your resignation from his organization because of your approaching motherhood—I took particular pleasure in handing him that news—these knocked him for seven goals. You haven't seen him since that Christmas night, have you?"

"No." I turned laconically. The whole subject was so distasteful to me that I felt as if I could add no other word to my negative.

"No doubt, you thought he was so ashamed of himself for the emotional rumpus he staged that evening that he did not want to face you again," she said, and I felt a quickened renewal of my curiosity, for she had voiced my thought exactly.

"Phil Veritzen never was ashamed of himself in his life," Lillian went on grimly. "If that had been all, he would have been at your door the next morning with his arms full of orchids or gardenias, or something like that. No, it was the overthrowing of one image and the substitution of another which has made him fight shy of the farmhouse. He simply doesn't care for the Madonna motif, that's all. And he's had to take time to orient himself. When he sees you again, as he'll have to pretty soon about that play, you'll find that he will have the most wonderful combination of respectful admiration for your genius, and tender consideration for the—wife—of—my—old—friend, that you could imagine. And you never, never, will again be bothered by anything approaching romantic sentiment from him."

"I never want to set eyes on him again," I burst out childishly.

"Don't say that to anybody else in the world but me," Lillian advised gravely. "It sounds too much like wounded vanity. Old Phil Veritzen never meant anything to you save a kindly and generous employer. His only change now is to an admirer of your talent, and a prospective producer of your play—pipe my artful alliteration? Why let anybody, even yourself, imagine that a certain change in his emotional outlook matters one whit to you?"

She rose and put her hand on my shoulder.

"Don't be mad at me girl!" she adjured. "I had to get all this out of my system—you need readjustment, although you probably don't realize it, and I thought today the first Dicky's been away was a good time to spring it. I suppose I've put my foot in so far that I never can get it out again, but please write on my tombstone that I meant well. Now I'm going to beat it for I don't believe I'm a particularly welcome sight on the horizon just now. However, I'm hoping you'll see after awhile what I'm trying to get at."

There was something in her voice which told me that I had hurt her, and I caught at her hand with sudden remorse and pulled her down beside me.

"If you dare go away!" I threatened unsteadily. "Do you think I don't realize the truth of what you're saying, and why you're saying it? I'm simply a bit upset over—everything—that's all."

"Is that to be wondered at?" She snatched at the chance of impersonality I had given her. "You've had enough the last few days to lay a perfectly strong woman on her back, let alone a lady who only recently left a hospital. That's just what I'm getting at. You're slipping right back into your old position of being the one to whom everyone comes—Junior for a sore thumb, Dicky for a lost collar button, Mother Graham for a 'settling' of Katie, me for general sympathy—we're all in it, and you're the goat. And you all the time with a heaven-sent talent just longing to be let out. Woman, it's like harnessing a race horse to a plow. That's an outworn simile, I know, but it expresses just what I mean, and I'm using it until I think of something better."

"But, Lillian," I faltered, "even supposing I am conceited enough to admit all you say, what am I going to do about it? I can't divorce Dicky and put my children into an orphanage and leave my home, just because Philip Veritzen says the first half of my play is good."

Lillian looked at me with an air of utter exasperation.

"I've read that people excelling in creative brainwork are often absolute morons along other mental lines," she said, "and you're proving it. Divorce! and orphanages! my word!"

"Look here!" I challenged suddenly, "if you can produce a plan whereby I can follow my 'career' as you call it, and not neglect my husband and children, I'll promise you to follow it faithfully."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Daily Bath as Part of Baby's Health Routine

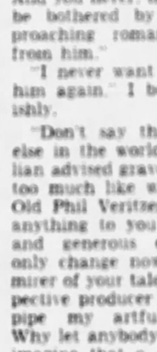
Have you ever watched an infant gurgle with joy in his tub? Most infants seem to enjoy this daily experience. Yet there are many who cry piteously when bathed. Undoubtedly infants who do not enjoy being bathed have had bad frights in the bathtub.



Dr. Copeland

The bath should be part of the daily routine and should, in addition to giving health to the child, add to its pleasure. The baby should be bathed at a regular time. It is best to bathe a nursing baby just before the second feeding.

Many mothers prefer to handle the baby on the lap. Usually it is more advantageous to use a low table. If the table is used, it should be padded at one end with a folded quilt or soft pad. Over this, place a soft towel with which the baby is to be dried.

The tub should be placed at the other end of the table. There should be a tray, or rack near the table. On this will be found soap, boric acid for the eyes, vaseline for the nose, a glass of sterilized cotton swabs or toothpicks, talcum powder, diapers, pins, etc.

The baby's head and face should be washed first. Very little soap should be used on this part of the body. The head and face should be dried carefully before washing the rest of the body.

The body should be lathered with soap. The baby should then be lowered gently into the tub. In doing this, the mother holds the infant with the left hand so that the buttocks rest on the palm, and the back and head rest on the forearm.

In this way the baby is steadied and feels secure. The mother's right hand is free and can be used to wash off the lather with a soft wash cloth.

When drying, the soft towel lying on the table should be wrapped around the baby. Drying should be slow and deliberate. All parts of the body, including all wrinkles, should be carefully dried. This will prevent chafing.

The baby's body should be gently massaged by rolling the flesh with the palm of the hand. This stimulates the circulation and hardens the skin.

Powder should never be used in excess. It is always best to use a well-recommended powder and no more than can be rubbed in gently. Loose powder on the body is irritating.

FAULTY STREET JOB BEING TORN UP

Lang Orders Paving Relaid After Tests Disclose Work Varied From Specifications

Workmen of the Harrison Construction Company were busy today tearing up 100 feet of Millerton street, between the Ohio River boulevard and Termon avenue, on orders of Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, who ordered the base relaid when tests disclosed it did not comply with specifications. Lang ordered the street relaid at the contractor's expense.

Lang said borings by the Bureau of Tests (under direction of J. J. Paine) had disclosed the concrete base lacking from ½ inch to 2 inches in depth. The stretch involved, Lang said, was 600 feet long altogether. Estimated cost of the street is $8,810.

Controller James P. Kerr and an inspector from his office went over the area late yesterday.

On a previous job ordered relaid by the Public Works Department, a compromise was reached later between Lang and Dominick Pavia, the contractor by which Pavia was to put up a bond to insure the city against any damage for five years. The job was improvement of Fifteenth street between Penn avenue and Pike street.

Kerr refused to approve a warrant of $17,834 for payment of the job and Pavia entered suit. The courts this week ordered payment, asserting Kerr was merely a ministerial officer without power to withhold payment after a director approved the final estimate.

Director Lang asserted yesterday that in the future there would be no compromises with the director.

He said:

"We will not allow any adjudications in any contracts where they do not comply with the specifications, and the contractors will be required to reconstruct work that does not come up to the letter of the contract and plans."

RAPS 'ONE-MAN' JUDGE-MAKING

Attorney Joseph H. Reich, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, addressed the League of Independent Republican Women yesterday in the Central Y. W. C. A.

He said in part:

"Six of the seven Judges seeking to succeed themselves owe their appointments to one man. This man in turn suggested their appointments to the most complacent Governor Pennsylvania ever had. That Governor now is in the employ of the man who suggested those appointments.

"My very simple but effective plan of relieving the congestion of Common Pleas Court—that is, longer working hours and shorter vacations—has been adopted by the other independent judicial candidates.

"However, I have as yet to hear any expression from any of the seven sitting Judges as to whether they would be willing to pledge themselves in the event of election, to put such a plan into effect."

PARK REVIEWS TRIAL RECORD

District Attorney Andrew T. Park addressed many of his former comrades of the 28th Division at a meeting last night in American Legion headquarters, Glassport.

He declared that in disposing of more than 8,500 cases in Criminal Court during the last year, with 85.4 per centage convictions, unusual energy has been shown in handling the affairs of the office, he said.

From "For the first time in the history of Criminal Court, the trial list is up to date. There is not a single untried murder indictment in my office."

With a limited personnel of 30 for the 1,250,000 population of Allegheny County, Park said, the County detectives had made 8,976 raids and investigations and had recorded more than 16,000 criminals and suspects.

DRYS ARREST 8, SEIZE 2 AUTOS

Eight persons were arrested and two liquor-laden automobiles and two stills were seized in prohibition arrests yesterday.

Those arrested while they were alleged to have been transporting liquor in an automobile were Anthony Russo and William Hughes. Hughes's automobile was seized in Sandusky street after two quarts of moonshine were reported found in it. Russo was arrested at Penn and Franklinton avenues.

A 100-gallon still was reported found in the homes of Elgie Meredith, at 674 Kessler street; Mt. Oliver, and Sam Boscoe, at 1604 Cliff street. Other arrests reported were Charles Brown and Paul Hill, at 1221 Wylie avenue; Anthony Joseph and Zanie Hawthorne, at 61 Elm street. In a barroom at 702 Forbes street, the agents confiscated home brew and moonshine, they said.

SLAG DUMPED TO SAVE WALK

To protect city sidewalks from further destruction by automobiles entering and leaving a privately owned parking lot in Fourth avenue and Ross street, the City Bureau of Highways and Sewers yesterday hauled eight truck loads of slag to the lot, according to Director Edward G. Lang and Engineer Tom M. Reed. They said:

"When the county began work on the new County Building it furnished us with grades it desired, sidewalks and curbs. They were changed without notification. A low spot was left in the parking lot. To prevent further destruction to the new sidewalk there we hauled the slag to level the lot. The county was notified to do this a week ago but failed to do so."

COURT AID PLEA LOOMS IN FAKE VOTER FIGHT

Registration Commission And Bar Expected to Seek Access to Tax Records

Indications were apparent today that the Registration Commission and the Bar Association would seek jointly a court order demanding access to the County Tax Board's books for the purpose of striking off illegal enrollments.

The situation became acute and attracted the attention of the Election Frauds Committee of the Bar Association a few days ago when tax board officials struck off 1,095 names from the Twenty-second Ward books as improperly enrolled.

President Arthur M. Scully of the Bar Association appointed a committee Thursday after a conference with County Treasurer John Francies and Registration Commissioner E. Lowry Humes.

Recently the Registration Commission discovered two men making false affidavits to place names on the assessors' books. But its request for access to the records was refused.

Judging from activities today, the Registration Commission will invite Scully to co-operate in an action before the courts with the objective of opening tax books in which the names of alleged residents have been recorded on authority of affidavits made during personal appearances at the tax office.

OFFICE SEEKERS SPEAK ON HILL

About 3,500 men and women jammed the People's Tabernacle Addison and Herman streets, to hear candidates for city and county offices advocate their cause at a rally last night under auspices of the Fifth Ward Voters League. Sidney R. Ray, Negro candidate for Alderman of the Fifth Ward, presided.

About one-fourth of the audience left the hall after Ray announced that the star attraction, Oscar De Priest, Negro Congressman of Illinois, had sent a telegram announcing his inability to be present.

Speakers included County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, State Senator James J. Coyne and C. C. Hamilton, candidates for County Commissioner; Raymond D. Evans, J. Boyd Duff and Harry H. Negley, for Judges of Common Pleas Court; Judges Richard A. Kennedy, Sara M. Soffel and D. Paulson Foster and Attorneys M. A. Musmanno, Benjamin Lencher, J. J. A series of campaign teas, to be held by women supporters of Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, began yesterday with a meeting of feminine voters in the home of Mrs. Lindsay, Briar Cliff road, where Attorney Robbin B. Wolf was the speaker.

He said:

"Mr. Lindsay, in the prime of life, always independent politically, has fine administrative ability and a sound knowledge of the law. The greater part of his life has been spent in this community and is well epitomized in the words, 'without fear and without reproach.' Anyone who knows him as well as I do feels confident that, if elected to the bench, his decisions never will be qualified by the pressure of politics."

Wolf explained that Lindsay's name was the twentieth on the vote machine ballot, in "C" row, column 3.

Mrs. Carstairs' Actions Hurt Fanchon's Conscience

CHAPTER IX.

Fanchon's heart turned over in her breast. The flush of excitement faded, and her golden skin was gray with shock. To have traveled so far upon her difficult road of deception, to have braced herself, to have dared so much and then with the first word of greeting to face defeat

"You're not really Evelyn Howard . . . you can't be . . ." this tall, beautiful woman had said.

Thus with the first speech between them Fanchon encountered, so she fancied, bewildered, frightened and ashamed, shame, disgrace — perhaps worse. A mental vision of courts, newspaper headlines, perhaps even bars wavered on the shuddering screen of her mind. She swayed back from Mrs. Carstairs . . . stammering something . . . a vain, a mad protest.

Jennie Carstairs' arm went around her again, holding her in a close and comforting clasp. She said, quick, contritely:

"Dear, I'm so sorry! I didn't mean to startle, to upset you. And after all you've been through! What an old idiot I am. Come, we'll go to the car. Let the porter take your little bag . . . Your trunk won't come for several days, but we'll attend to all that."

Talking, she half led Fanchon out through the station and the crowds to the big parked car. The chauffeur jumped down from his seat, touched his cap, took the pitiful little borrowed suitcase and opened the door. Mechanically, Fanchon climbed in.

It was early evening. Fifth avenue was at its best and loveliest under the slanting golden light. The car moved ahead smoothly, powerfully. A luxurious car, beautifully fitted.

Synopsis

Leaving Hawaii shortly after her father's death, young and beautiful Fanchon Meredith goes to San Francisco, where she meets and loves a handsome man named Tony. Fanchon is shocked to learn that Tony is a racketeer, implicated in a recent murder. She, too, is now wanted. Fanchon escapes in an airplane under the name of "Smith." Evelyn Howard, whom she had met on the boat coming from Hawaii, is aboard. Evelyn is en route to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she has never met. After Fanchon confides in Evelyn, the latter treats her coolly. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. She decides to escape Tony and the past and start life anew by masquerading as Evelyn. She requests a doctor to wire Mrs. Carstairs that "Evelyn" is safe. A wire comes from Mrs. Carstairs saying that Collin cannot meet Fanchon. Fanchon learns Collin is Mrs. Carstairs' only son. Mrs. Carstairs meets Fanchon at train exclaiming, "But you're not Evelyn, are you? . . . You can't be."

Now Go On

MYSTERY CLEARED

Mrs. Carstairs still kept Fanchon's hand in hers. Fanchon, understanding nothing, still not comprehending the older woman's curious greeting, felt the blood come back to her cheeks and her cold hands, in a great wave of relief. The tears, which had been so foreign to her nature until the last desperate days on the coast, rose easily in reaction to her magnificent, strange eyes. She tried to smile at Mrs. Carstairs, realizing that, after all, no real danger threatened her as yet, but her soft red mouth shook. Mrs. Carstairs pressed the hand she held.

"How silly I was," she said again, apologetically. "But I couldn't believe that anything as beautiful as you could belong in our family"

So that was it! Fanchon flushed deeply, rose over gold. Mrs. Carstairs said, softly,

"What lovely coloring . . . you didn't tell me . . . your little letters were so stiff and funny. Dark hair, blue eyes, you said. I had only the little snapshot to go on." she looked in her flat handbag and drew out a worn little photograph . . . "see?"

Fanchon looked and felt her heart constrict again. There, they were, she and—Evelyn Howard. Fanchon herself stood at the boat rail, bareheaded, the breeze in her dark curls. She was laughing. Evelyn, rather prim in a sweater suit, stood behind her.

PRAISES BEAUTY

"I see now," Mrs. Carstairs said, laughing, "what a foolish mistake for me to make. It is really a very good likeness. But I thought the other girl was—you. You said, 'the girl on the left.' So it was your mistake as well, my dear."

Fanchon said, low, and as steadily as she could:

"That was idiotic of me."

"Well, never mind. She," said Mrs. Carstairs, looking at Evelyn Howard; abstractedly, "is well enough. In fact, I thought that in her features I could see a trace, just a suggestion of your mother's." She sighed and her face clouded. "Oh, Evelyn," she cried, suddenly, "have you forgiven me, forgiven us all for our outrageous treatment of her . . . and of you?"

"Of course," said Fanchon, moved by the appeal in the blue eyes.

"You," said Mrs. Carstairs, "haven't the least look of May about you. You are much lovelier than she ever was. Perhaps," she added, with an effort, "you are like your father's people?"

"I have heard so." Fanchon said, honestly, and took a deep breath of relief. She was still trembling a little from reaction.

"I won't," her aunt said, low, "ask you anything about the accident. It . . . is too close to you now. Later, perhaps, when you feel more like telling me? I was half insane when the wire reached me, with gratitude, with a realization of what might so easily have been." She smiled, waveringly and saw how Fanchon shivered at the mention of the disaster.

"We'll be home soon," Mrs. Carstairs said, "and you're to go to bed and rest for several days."

"The doctor said so," Fanchon admitted.

"I know he did. Good man, he wired me, quite on his own, and gave his orders. But I would have insisted anyway."

FANCHON PLEASED

She went on:

"I came up to the apartment to meet you. We are, as I wrote you, settled in Southampton for the summer. I was anxious for you to get here as quickly as possible as I wish to entertain for you, when you are strong enough. In the autumn you shall be presented to society in New York and have a season here. Next spring, we may go abroad together. Would you like that, Evelyn?" she asked with wistfulness.

"I'd love it," said Fanchon, softly.

Oh, she thought, what a miserable coward I am! She looked about her frantically. She had expected to meet consideration, kindness, duty. She could have faced that, could have rendered something in return, for a measure, a time, of safety. But to encounter this warmth of seeking, asking, wistful affection was almost more than she could endure; it was something she had so longed for since her father's death; something she had longed for all her life as well. Dear as her father had been to her, she had always dreamed silently and secretly of a gracious, beautiful understanding mother. And here was such a woman, the perfect answer to those childish dreams. But she was taking what was offered her under the most hideous of false pretenses. She thought of Evelyn, of the shattered little body, gone by now perhaps to its lonly grave, surrounded by strangers. She put both hands to her face and shook with pity and despair and hatred of herself.

ALWAYS WANTED DAUGHTER

"My dear," said Mrs. Carstairs, gently, "I realize the strain you must have been through. You must try and forget. And all the vanished years beside. You must begin all over again. With me."

Fanchon murmured something . . . "so terribly kind," she said.

"Kind! As if I could make up for all the years of neglect and unkindness," Jennie Carstairs told her strongly. "I never can. It is you who are kind, Evelyn. If you knew how I have longed all my life, for a daughter! Collin is the best son in the world but most women want daughters, to . . . to fuss over, a little, to dress, to spoil a bit . . . I've always wanted a daughter," she said. "You knew . . . did your mother tell you—? that Collin was a twin? The other twin died. A dear little girl! Thirty years ago, but I've never forgotten," she said. "It was shortly after that that we went to England and France to live . . . Your uncle," she added, "was very kind, he understood. I was not young at the time, I was 30 or so, and I knew I would have no more children. It was a great blow to me . . . to us both."

SOME ODD FACTS

Small balloons, measuring about 4 feet in diameter, and carrying feather-weight instruments, are used for "exploring" the upper atmosphere. They show that the temperature remains nearly the same from a height of six miles to about 18 miles. Above that height is a band of very high temperature.

DAILY SHORT STORY

'And So - - -'

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Girl Is Embarrassed by Friend's Marriage

"It's almost that shade," and Viola ran her hand into the sheer hosiery to make sure.

The tired woman back of the hosiery counter tapped her teeth with a pencil and waited.

It was neither new nor a treat to her to have customers in doubt as to the exact shade they wanted.

"I thought," said Viola, "that I brought a piece of the goods with me to match by——"

She began to paw through her shiny new hand bag.

The woman behind the counter tapped her teeth some more with a pencil and shifted her weight to the other foot.

Someone passing stopped with a jerk and stared at Viola then she rushed up and grabbed her.

"Why Viola Martin — you here?" She cried.

"Marge Jepson! Of all things!"

They embraced.

"What are you doing back in the city, Marge?" Viola asked.

"Oh, I've got so much to tell you, Vi, honestly, so much to tell you——"

"And so——"

"Honestly I'll bet you'll be surprised."

"And so——"

"You'll just scream when I tell you," Marge continued.

Viola wanted to say to her, "And so have I got something to tell you," but knowing Marge, she realized that it would be some time before she could tell it.

"Will you take this shade, Miss?" asked the woman behind the counter.

Marge glanced down at the sheer stocking still in Viola's hand.

"You buying hosiery, Vi?" Marge asked.

HUNTS FOR GOODS

"Does she think this looks like the linoleum counter?" muttered the saleslady.

"What?" asked Viola.

"Will you take that shade, Miss?"

"I wish I was sure—I thought I had a piece of the goods——"

She began to delve into the shiny new handbag again.

"That's a pretty shade, but I like that sort of salmon better, Vi," Marge said.

"I've got to match a new dress—I thought I had a piece of the goods."

"One seldom makes a mistake, I am sure you will find this is all right, Miss—how many pairs do you want?" The saleslady spoke rather sharply.

"For goodness sake, Vi, don't you take just any shade, you get what you want," and Marge scowled at the saleslady.

"This is almost the shade — I——"

Viola put back the stocking, dumped her bag on the counter and finally found the piece of goods.

"There — see — it isn't quite this shade."

"I can match it," said the saleslady and she turned to the boxes of hosiery.

"Well, I never thought I'd run into you here, Vi—gosh, but I'm so glad to see you and I've got so much to tell you about——"

PAYS SALESLADY

"And so——"

"You just listen to my story, I guess it will thrill you, Vi, you see——"

"How many pairs, Miss?" the saleslady said, rather sharply.

"Six," said Viola.

"Goodness, you are blowing yourself, aren't you, Vi? I'll bet you've gone and got yourself a nice serious-minded boy friend, but I've sure got something to tell you about boy friends myself, you see——"

"And so——"

"Honest, it's just too romantic for words. You see I met him back in——"

"Anything else, Miss? These will be eight-ninety-seven."

Viola extracted from a pocket in the handbag a packet of bills. Marge eyed them and tried to keep the surprise from her eyes for she spotted some twenties there. Viola gave the saleslady a ten dollar bill and told her there would be nothing more there.

"Yes, I met him back in Halstead, my old home town. I been back there two months now, ever since the Gufmanns failed and Guggy gave us an awful scare by jumping out of the window."

"I know," Viola said, "and since you went away things have happened——"

"But you listen to me, Vi. Even if I did go back to the hick home town I didn't curl up and die, and I met the loveliest man you ever saw——"

"And so——"

"Honest, you won't believe what a streak of luck I got finally, a swell job and everything——"

"Your change, Miss," said the saleslady.

Viola took her change and the parcel and turned away from the hosiery counter.

"What time is it, Vi—Oh my goodness, you got a new watch haven't you—it's kind of a nice looking watch. Just you wait, Vi, I got a swell rich boy friend on the string—I'll land him sure and then see the watch I'll get—real diamonds in it!"

"These are real diamonds, Marge, you see——"

"Yeah? Well, goodness, we can't stand here chattering, let's go some place, I sure got a lot to tell you——"

"And so——"

"Honest, I bet you'll be surprised. Had lunch? Huh?"

"No, I was going down town——"

"Oh, let's go over to the Yam Tree Tea Shoppe—it's nice and quiet there and we can talk and you used to get the swellest lunch for 40 cents. Where do you go? Say, how is it you're up town? You used to work down town, and that reminds me, I got so much to tell you——"

"And so——"

"Heaps and heaps, and so exciting—my goodness, you gonna take a taxi for just five blocks? Oh, all right—somebody musta died and left you money. Well, you know when I went back home, there bein' no more jobs for nobody, what with the depression, I figured I'd be bored silly, but gosh, I hadn't been home more than five or six weeks before I met the dandiest man—Oh, we here so quick?"

They went into the tea room and found a secluded corner. In fact all four corners were secluded—and unoccupied.

"What you gonna have? The reg'lar lunch is swell—my goodness it's gone up to 50 cents, you'd think with this depression on——"

"And so——"

"But lissen, Vi——"

"I've got plenty to tell you, Marge——"

TELLS OF EXPERIENCE

"All right, but lemme get this off my chest first. You see I'd been back home five or six weeks, and I was fit to be tied, nobody there in that hick town, but some of them natives, you know, would-be sports who'd have a ice cream soda and go to a 15-cent movie and then one day I runs smack into Mr. Trutman, he's the minister, a nice old guy, older'n Methuselem, he married Ma and Pa. And he christened me and he says to me, 'Didn't you work in an exporting office in the city, Marguerite?'—he always calls me that because I was christened that—and I tells him I did and he says 'I have a nephew who has just inherited one of the biggest exporting businesses in the city. He's going to consolidate with another and I could get him to give you work there, your mother says you need'—well of course the old dud was wrong, we didn't need nothin' only I thanked him and he told me to come over to th' parsonage and I did and gosh, Vi, did I meet a swell man? My dear, perfect! And he was mighty nice to me, he seemed to fall for me at once only he was too polite to say so, but I can tell. He talked to me about my experience and of course I didn't tell him I was any flop and he said he would be pleased to find work for me as anyone his uncle recommended would be all right and his father was born in my town—Oh he talked lovely."

"That's swell, Marge, for you to get a nice job. When are you going to work?"

SHOWN CLIPPING

"Monday morning. I got in this morning but it's Friday and I thought it might be unlucky to start work, and think of the cinch I got—I know the big owner intimately, havin' met him in a sort of social way and the other girls will be mighty jealous—and from the way he talked to me and smiled at me and everything I know I got him fallin' hard—some boy friend—you bet I'll never work any more after he falls for me hard enough to be my steady and then we get married. Now, there, didn't I tell you I had an awful lot of news for you?"

"And so——"

"And that isn't all, he told me he was sure that I was capable and sensible and that he liked capable and sensible girls, but he sort of smiled at me—just you wait until we get better acquainted, I couldn't work too fast on him at first, but believe me I'll land Dick Peters or my names Dennis."

"Uh huh, you wouldn't know him, he comes of a rich family right in the city only his people come from Halstead, my hick home town."

"So you know Dick Peters, Marge? Imagine that!"

"You've read about him, then?"

"No, not exactly read about him, except his marriage notice."

"Marriage notice? Dick Peters married? I won't—you're just jealous, I don't believe—"

"I ought to know, Marge, that's what I've been trying to tell you and you wouldn't let me get any further than 'And so—' and it is true about Dick Peters being married because he married me, two weeks ago—here's the clipping. We're living on Park avenue and in the fall when his business is all going good we're starting on a trip around the world—why Marge, it won't do you any good to tear up that newspaper notice of our wedding, I've got plenty—where are you going, Marge?"

"What is the matter with your friend?" the waitress asked Viola, "Is she sick?"

"Why," and Viola smiled at her and gave her a half dollar tip, "the truth is, she doesn't feel very well."

YOW OO
COYOTES? ARE THEY VERY DANGEROUS??
OH, NO—THEY ARE JUST COWARDLY SKULKERS— ALWAYS SLINKING AND RUNNING FROM THEIR OWN SHADOWS
WHAT A LAUGH— I DIDNT LET ON, BUT EVERY TIME ONE OF THOSE COYOTES HOWLED, THEY SCARED ME SOMETHING AWFUL— AN' THEY AINT NOTHIN' BUT RABBIT-CHASERS!
YOU KNOW, SOME FOLKS IS LIKE COYOTES— THEIR NOISE SCARES YOU— BUT WHEN YOU FIND OUT ABOUT THEM, YOU KNOW YOU WAS A SAP— TO LET A BUNCH OF LOUD NOISE FOOL YOU!

GRAND OLD MAN OF SCIENCE SCORES ANOTHER TRIUMPH

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.—Frisby has done it again. Those were the words that swept the capital like wild fire water last night with the announcement that the sleepless Congressman had again befriended the human race. "What I have done," said Frisby, "is to work out the Frisbyscope—or automatic pencil X-ray. This invention will actually show whether or not there is another lead in an automatic pencil without the laborious necessity of removing the capus, capuli, or cap. Obviously, my invention will do a lot to eliminate the time-wasting office clerk, or Pencil Peeping Tom."

Coercing the Payroll

Civil Service Reform Is Again in Order—Brief Comment on Local News Items.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong stooped to ugly tactics when he summoned the county park employes, numbering more than 300, to his political headquarters in the Hotel Henry Thursday night and ordered them to help him in his campaign for re-election. The fact that the roll was called bodes ill for those who failed to attend.

If there is anything that an American citizen regards as his inalienable birthright, it is his right to sell government, his right to vote for whatever candidate he chooses. Commissioner Armstrong is trampling on that right when he dictates to the men on the county payroll how they shall mark their ballots, and threatens them with loss of their jobs if he is not elected.

For brazen defiance of the decencies Commissioner Armstrong's attempted coercion of the payroll is scarcely second to Mayor Kline's famous "bread and butter" speech to city employes. In the employment of shameless means to command votes there is little to choose between these two bosses. They are tarred with the same stick.

What has become of Civil Service Reform? After a long fight in which Pittsburghers took a prominent part laws were enacted which it was thought would protect Civil Service employes from political intimidation and leave them free to vote for whom they chose without fear of losing their positions. Those laws, so far as the city and county are concerned, appear to have become a dead letter. Civil Service Reform is again in order.

In grateful contrast with Armstrong's action in dragging park laborers into the campaign as political workers for him is Gov. Pinchot's letter to the State Game Commission, published yesterday, in which he tells the Commissioners that they and their subordinates are to keep entirely out of politics.

Gov. Pinchot says the personnel of the Game Commission has been selected "wholly on merit and without regard to the political advantage of the administration." City and county employes should also be selected wholly on merit. Efficient government is out of the question so long as even laborers' jobs are handed out as a reward for political activities.

The Allegheny County Bar Association deserves the thanks of the citizens for again moving to prevent election frauds. The association has appointed a strong committee to assist the public officials and the courts in the enforcement of the election laws. The work done by a similar committee two years ago in striking fraudulent names from the registration books is an earnest of the value of the lawyers' volunteer service.

The race for county poor directors is one that ordinarily attracts comparatively little attention because citizens of Pittsburgh, who maintain their own almshouse, do not vote for them. The charges that have been made against the incumbents, Maj. J. Clyde Miller, H. H. Dixon and Dr. W. L. Henderson, who are seeking election, make the contest this year, however, one of extraordinary interest.

It is charged, and not denied, that the poor directors bought for the county for $64,762 a tract of land which only two days before had been sold for $39,163. The question is not, as Dr. Henderson seems to think, if the land is worth $64,762, but if the Poor Board paid for it $25,599 more of the taxpayers' money than was necessary, and if so, why.

It is a pleasure to note that while the management of many of our city and county institutions under their present administrations is unsatisfactory we have two shining examples of good management. The Allegheny County Workhouse has just been adjudged by the State Department of Welfare the best kept county penal institution in Pennsylvania, and the jail is not far behind.

The workhouse has been scored with 875 out of a possible 1,000 points for administration, condition of buildings and grounds, and efficiency of personnel. The Allegheny County Jail scored 720 points. What this means can be judged from the fact that 31 of the 67 county penal institutions fell below the 500 mark. Congratulations to Supt. Robert H. Braun, of the workhouse, and Warden John McNeil, of the county jail!

Every now and then we continue to hear of new laws passed by the last Legislature which at the time of their enactment escaped attention because of the greater importance of other matters. Here, for example, comes notice that the operators of swimming pools will have to take out licenses under the terms of a new statute which goes into effect September 1.

The Department of Health announces that licenses will be withheld from swimming pools which do not comply with certain regulations that will be laid down as to sanitation, supervision and the quality of the water. The public will be glad to receive this protection. The pools around Pittsburgh have been thronged this summer, but the season for outdoor pools is nearing a close, which may reduce the number of applications for licenses.

Summer is not yet over, however, and there is a reminder that there is an abundance of summer reading matter—entertaining, and not heavy—in the American Weekly magazine section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph to be published tomorrow. Especially interesting is the article which tells of Japanese women who, under the influence of American movies, are having their almond-shaped eyes made over by a Tokio surgeon.

The Gravure Section of tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph will also prove entertaining. There are reproductions in colors of Gari Melchers' painting, "The Vespers," and also of pictures by John P. Wicker and William Sergeant Kendall. You will, of course, want to read Mark Shields' review of local politics in the news section.

It is gratifying to learn that new schools to be opened in the city when classes resume in September will end overcrowding. The ideal is "a seat for every pupil," and education suffers when we fall short of that.

What Man Will Never Learn

Isn't Science WONDERFUL!

* * *

It has taught man everything! That is, NEARLY everything—except how to keep his shirt from bulging, to shave without cutting himself and to refrain from arguing with a woman.

* * *

It has taught him to control the elements—but not how to control his own temper or a woman half his own size.

* * *

It has demonstrated that perpetual motion is only a fond dream, yet we still continue to believe in perpetual love.

By its aid, man has found the poles at the ends of the earth, but he never can find his own hat nor the particular socks he wanted to wear.

* * *

It has taught him to understand the Einstein theory and the civilization of the ancients—yet he cannot understand a woman with whom he has lived half his life.

* * *

It has helped him to compute the exact number of miles a comet will travel to reach the earth, and the exact moment it will arrive, but never the number of miles he will walk in search of a lost golf ball, or the exact moment he will get home for dinner.

* * *

It has shown us how to draw electricity from the clouds, but never how to draw a smile or a compliment from a husband before breakfast or the truth from the lips of a lover.

* * *

It has convinced men that two atoms cannot occupy the same space at the same time, but not that two women cannot simultaneously occupy the same space in a man's heart.

* * *

It has taught man the mysteries and powerful effects of the X-ray, but it has not yet taught him to refrain from lying on the beach under a boiling sun until his shoulders are blistered.

It has taught him to beware of touching a lighted match to dynamite, but not to abstain from writing burning letters to a lady of the chorus.

* * *

It has demonstrated that an engine must be continually fed with coal or gasoline in order to keep it running, but it has never caused a man to doubt that a woman's heart will go right on pumping and beating for him WITHOUT fuel.

* * *

It has supplied man WITH EVERYTHING HE could possibly want, need or wish for, from food to AIRSHIPS—WITH EVERYTHING, except a little COMMON SENSE.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Have you a right to be eating meat and cake, these days, if your neighbor is eating stale bread and water?

Have you a right to be sleeping in a soft bed, riding in a car, reading good books, working at a good job if he is homeless, penniless?

"Of course I have," you say. "I earned that cake and meat—that house and car. I worked hard. Used my brains and got ahead. Saved and sacrificed. Now I have a right to enjoy my reward."

But have you?

It is true, he was lazy while you were industrious. He wasted while you saved. He's stupid and clumsy and lacking in ambition— But is all that his fault?

Did you get an equal start—you and your neighbor? Did he have as good a mind as yours, as healthy a body, as sound training and environment? Did he have as fair a chance as you did, everything considered? And if he didn't, should he be penalized for the faults he cannot help? Should you be rewarded for the virtues you did not create?

AND IF HE IS PENALIZED AND YOU ARE REWARDED, WHAT WILL COME OF IT EVENTUALLY? WILL HIS IGNORANCE AND MISERY DRAG YOU DOWN? OR WILL YOUR INDUSTRY AND WISDOM DRAG HIM UP? OR WILL YOU BOTH "FA' DOWN AND GO BOOM?"

Strange, upsetting questions—aren't they? You can't escape questions like that if you're reading about Russia these days.

"Aw, those Russians make me sick!" you say at once. "Lookit the crazy things they do. Take away all the property from the hard-working, intelligent people and give it to the bums and stupes. Call that sense?"

The Communists call it sense. They say it is the only way to bring peace and prosperity into Russia.

"ALL MEN ARE BORN EQUAL," say the Americans. So if your neighbor is a failure, that's his own fault. He had as good a start as you did. If he didn't take advantage of it, why should you be bothered?

But you should be bothered, according to the Communists. FOR ALL MEN ARE NOT BORN EQUAL—say they. To the contrary, men are born terribly unequal. There are awful injustices right in nature—Most men—the great masses of men—suffer all their lives from those injustices. And there can never be a decent, civilized world if the majority of men are sick and lazy and stupid and miserable. So it's up to the strong to help the weak. You've no right to eat cake if your brother eats crumbs. YOU ARE YOUR BROTHER'S KEEPER.

"Yeah?" you say. "It listens swell but they'll never get by with it. It's all cockeyed. The only way is to let the bright men make good and give jobs to the dull ones. Capitalism — that's the stuff. Those Reds sneer at it — but look what it has done for America."

Whereupon the Communist would immediately answer — "Look what it HASN'T done! Look at your growing millions of unemployed. Look at your idle machines, your empty factories. Is that what YOU call equality?"

And then YOU would say — what?

JENNER'S EXPERIMENTS

By Archibald Henderson

Edward Jenner was born at Berkeley, Gloucestershire, England, on May 17, 1749. In his early youth he showed decided inclinations towards the study of medicine; and learned the fundamentals of pharmacy and surgery, as a doctor's apprentice. At the age of 21 he became a student at St. George's Hospital in London. He resided in the home of John Hunter, who, with his brother, William, were the most noted anatomists and physiologists of their day; and became John Hunter's pupil and lifelong friend.

After doing some scientific work in London, Jenner returned to his native town, although offered inducements to remain in London. After practicing medicine for several years he became much interested in the popular tradition that there was a relation between cowpox and smallpox.

It had long been the practice in rural English communities, and probably elsewhere, to inoculate children with the smallpox virus, on the theory that they would come through the disease with less risk and disfiguremept, in infancy than later. As early as 1763 it had become known that milkmaids had no hesitancy in handling cows suffering from cowpox or vaccinia.

Jenner learned of the strange case of a Gloucestershire farmer who had accidentally inoculated himself while handling a cow infected with cowpox. On finding that it had rendered him immune during a severe run of smallpox in the neighborhood, he boldly applied the remedy to his wife and two sons, with efficacious results.

After studying these and many similar cases, over a period of 20 years, Jenner finally decided to make the experiment himself on a human being. First he inoculated an 8-year-old boy with cowpox lymph; and subsequently, on inoculating him with smallpox virus, found him to be completely immune. Two years later he published his famous work, a world classic in medical science, "An Inquiry Into the Causes and Effects of Variolae Vacciniae Known by the Name of Cowpox." In 1803 Jenner founded the Royal Institution for the Extermination of Smallpox; and to this work he gave his professional services free. He received large grants from the crown and many honors, prior to his death on January 26, 1823.

Plots

They are crowded around us, the plots
That life in its weaving creates,
The meshes of intricate webs
That are drawn through the hands of the Fates.

They are stranger than men can devise
In the fancies they fashion with care;
They are countless as songsters that wing
Through the limitless regions of air.

They are beautiful, relevant, true,
Making patterns from chaos and strife,
The plots that are greater than man's
And a-glow with the wonder of life!

Put a Prosperity Loan Behind Walter Gifford

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

AT TIMES when the American public looks to President Hoover for courageous and decisive leadership, it has become a habit for him to appoint a commission instead.

Fact finding is, of course, praiseworthy, but it represents only a start toward the formulation of a policy of action.

The broad general facts regarding the unemployment crisis are clear, and the technique for dealing with it was admirably set forth after the last depression by the President's conference on unemployment, of which Mr. Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, was chairman.

Instead of taking the advice of the body of which he was head, and seeking to deal with the fundamental causes of unemployment, Mr. Hoover, in the spirit of a fact finder, appoints the highly able Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone Company, to set up a federal board with undefined powers to meet the situation.

Mr. Hoover again places the main emphasis on the effects of continued depression, but seems reluctant to deal broadly with the causes.

He asks Mr. Gifford, a brilliant executive, to become generalissimo of the relief forces.

With a third winter of widespread unemployment looming, it is, of course, necessary to make humane provision for the casualties in the economic struggle.

But it is the job of leadership to go deeper, and to seek, if possible, to end the economic scourge, which is maiming so many soldiers in the industrial army.

SCIENTIFIC economists and social workers recognize that there is a lack of purchasing power, and this void is traceable in large measure to the startling shrinkage of activity in the construction industry.

Private business activities depend on the sentiment and judgment of thousands of scattered individuals, and cannot be altered at will. The one activity which is capable of being speedily subjected to social control consists of the public works program of the government itself.

To end the self-perpetuating depression, William Randolph Hearst proposed that the federal government float a prosperity loan of $5,000,000,000, which should be used for social reconstruction and the return of normal business.

Mr. Hearst's recommendation was in line with the policy of Mr. Hoover's own body of experts, who advised in a report published in 1923: "The essential steps in any general program are to plan construction work, private or public, LONG IN ADVANCE with reference to the cyclical movement of business, and in the case of public work to pass the necessary legislative appropriations when facts about the trend of business show that it is sound policy to spend money for such purposes."

IN THE foreword to this report, Mr. Hoover declared: "No waste is greater than unemployment; no suffering is keener or more fraught with despair than that due to inability by those who wish to get jobs."

Let Mr. Hoover act now on the basis of his own previous advice.

No time should be lost with further preliminary surveys.

Congress must be called in special session if any effective near-term relief from continuing deflation is to be given.

Mr. Gifford, who has had experience in spending billions for the telephone industry, is equipped to help administer the spending of a vast prosperity loan for essential public works.

But under the terms of the present appointment, Mr. Gifford is without power to do a far-reaching, thoroughgoing job.

The situation is too serious for shadow boxing—too immediate for avoidable delay.

The opportunity for collective action for wise social advancement, instead of for destructive warfare, is large, and no executive timidity should stand in the way of broad-visioned achievement.

HOMEWARD BOUND

By O. O. McIntyre

HOMEWARD BOUND, Aug. 22—This piece is a six-days-in-one windup of the travelogues. I want to stretch out on the top deck of the liner all the way across and try to smuggle through New York customs the niftiest tan ever brought over the North Atlantic.

The passenger list is shucked down to a slim handful. The only notables I have noticed so far are Frank Noyes, Washington publisher, and Roland Hayes, the singer. Due to a blanket of fog a few miles out in the harbor, our take-off was held up five anxious hours.

An incoming liner, anchored the width of Fifth avenue away, was distinguishable only in asymptotic tracing—a luminously ghostly silhouette. Deck walkers ceased because of constant collisions. Fog horns groaned their two-minute cacophony of despair. One joy-killer donned his life belt. A fog lifts in the quick manner of a theatrical curtain. One minute the vista is nebulous. The next, bells ring, the ship trembles and glides away in a splash of sunshine. The greatest problem of seamanship to me is how seamen maintain their appetites.

I can never cling to an otherwise lusty hunger for food more than three days. It completely vanishes and the rest of the way I nibble at nuts and fruit. The moment I set foot on land, however, I am ravenous. Seamen, I am told, are affected reversely. They eat little on shore.

Due to an abundance of empty cabins, a thoughtful ship officer transferred us to a de luxe suite fancifully named, "Saint Germaine." There is private dining room, a what-I-would-call-sitting room, enormous bedroom and two baths. I am leaving the front door open and sitting where I hope to be seen.

* * *

They tell of a young lady aboard returning from her first visit to Paris and who does not seem to understand that liner attendants speak English. She is also not a very good sailor. Today she rang for her steward and mumbled wanly: "Have la porter apportez my mal de mer."

* * *

There is a type of voyager in constant sartorial exhalation. In the morning he appears in flannels and brass buttoned blue sport coat. Later in a business suit, then a golf costume for deck walking, dinner suit and for gala night full dress. At night he may round the deck in pajamas and house robe. Each day the costumes are entirely different. Not even the roughest sort of sea squelches his ardor. I often wonder where such enthusiasts came from, what they do and if they get any fun out of it. One shirt will last me an ocean and a creek.

* * *

Huge mugs of beer on the transAtlantic boats are 6 cents in American coin and the ordinary glass of beer 3 cents. Cocktails are around 30 cents. It seems most American ladies order a cocktail called the Side Car.

* * *

Tucked away in many huge steamers are tiny half-lit chapels providing a sober contrast to bridge and drinking rooms and the sportive flair of the decks. I passed the one on this boat at the vesperal hour. Through the gloom faintly was the white altar of the Virgin. A thin youthful voice was singing Gounod's "Ave Maria." A gentleman in a checked suit, gaudy cap and with a huge cigar stuck his head in, quickly removed his cap and cigar and a half hour later when I passed again was standing there, immovable, transfixed.

* * *

I became totally absorbed, too, at dinner in the serving of a drink order for a pair of young honeymooners and their two guests. First was brought fresh raw peaches imbedded in a tray of ice. With silver prongs a peach was dropped into tall highball glasses and over them was poured sparkling champagne. Placed before the diners, each began prodding the peach with the prongs of a long fork and then they drank. It seemed to hit the bull's eye for in 20 minutes all were glee-oriously gleeful and talking thick

* * *

Every time a ship nears quarantine I'm taut with anxiety until anchor is lifted again. I'm always afraid health officers will discover I am just about to bust out with beri-beri or bubonic plague. And off I go to a barbed-wired isolation camp. But already we are nosing up the North River and in an hour will be bowling along New York streets. And I'm likely to neck a few lamp posts en route.

Isn't It So?

Knowing that you don't know much is knowing a lot.

A man never knows who his friends are till he has too many of them.

Girls used to die with broken hearts. Nowadays they merely get mad and sue.

It seems as though the average girl can't even make up her mind without the aid of a certain amount of paint and powder.
